BLOND "LURE" TELLS OF FRAME-UP PLANS

GIRL REVEALS WALKUP 'PLOT'

Police Hunting Four Men as Sequel to Revelations

Blond Remains in Custody; Lure Scheme Detailed

Politician, Financier, Aide of Porter Mentioned

Complete details of the plot to frame Police Commissioner Walkup are in the hands of the police it was announced yesterday. Miss Helen Lee, blond lure in the scheme, has confessed freely to her part in the plan.

With the amazing plan unfolded, Chief of Police Steckel and Chief of Detectives Taylor renewed their efforts to locate Conner M. (Mike) Shawn, taxicab company checker and close friend of Miss Lee. Three other men also are sought.

Miss Lee, according to Chief Steckel, told of her employment by three men at a salary of $5 per day, and the instructions she received to attempt to develop a friendship with Commissioner Walkup that would eventually lead to a visit to her hotel apartment, where he would be discovered in a compromising position.

DIRECTIONS RELATED

The girl, according to the confession as outlined by Steckel, told of her friendship with Shawn, and how she had received her directions from him. Further she related of hearing telephone conversations between Shawn and three other men. She made it plain to the police that she has every reason to believe that these men were back of the plot, and that she and Shawn were playing the part of hired hands.

In giving police the details of the plot, Miss Lee named a Hollywood financier, a Negro politician and a city official connected with the staff of Mayor Porter. She said that these three with Shawn were all connected with the attempted scheme to ruin the reputation of Walkup, and that the entire matter was a plan to "get even" with the commissioner for his attitude on refusing to approve permits for a dance hall on Central avenue and other matters that affected the trio she asserts were back of the nefarious plan.

GIRL STILL HELD

Chief Steckel intimated yesterday that the entire situation will be placed before the grand jury for final disposition, but declared that the time of this move depends on the location and apprehension of Shawn and two persons named by Miss Lee.

Definite instructions of Mayor Porter that the whole situation be cleared up and that the motive behind the asserted plot be uncovered were pointed out by Steckel and Taylor as a certainty that the matter will be investigated to the fullest extent.

Considerable significance is attached to the declarations of Miss Lee that the plot was planned to culminate last Wednesday night, and Steckel let it be known that this date played a most important part in the entire scheme. Miss Lee is still in custody and will be held until the whole matter is cleared up, Steckel said.

YAWL HELD NO CRAFT TO CRUISE SEAS

One of Peggy's Crew Back from Pacific Isles with Tale of Hardships

Cruising the Pacific in a thirty-foot yawl is more pleasant to write about than to experience, in the opinion of F. Garland Swain of the Whittier News, who came from Hawaii this week-end on the Lasco liner Calawaii.

F. GARLAND SWAIN.

It was just such a cruise on which he and Fred B. Hume set out on the Peggy from San Diego June 14. In the interim there have been squalls, doldrums and gaunt hunger.

Three days out from San Diego the auxiliary engine went dead and remained dead. Their radio got wet and went on strike. Their food got wet and they threw most of it away.

For forty-three days and nights they sighted no ship nor a single human. Finally they fetched up 3000 miles away on the Marquesas island of Hiva Oa. A week's respite and they sailed to Nuku Hiva, where the islanders feted them as heroes. On a sixteen-day cruise to Hilo, Hawaii, they lived the last four on raw sugar and cocoanuts.

"As for these lone navigators," philosophized Swain, "I'd rather see than be one." His companion will bring back the yawl from Hawaii on a steamer.

AMENDMENT INDORSED

The State Federation of Labor has voted unanimous support to Constitutional Amendment No. 6, which will provide tax exemption for the nonprofit hospitals, according to G. W. Curtis, general chairman of the California Committee for Tax Exemption of the Nonprofit Hospital. The measure will appear as Proposition No. 8 on the November 4 ballot.

Runaway Horse Rider Dies as Head Hits Pole

An attempt to grab a telephone pole to save himself from a runaway horse on which he was riding ended fatally yesterday morning for Tom Mintz, 24 years of age, motion-picture property man, of 755 North Ridgewood avenue, according to the report of Detective Lieutenants Steed and Hoy.

Mintz, the detectives said, was riding with a party of friends in Griffith Park. He apparently had no trouble with the horse until the party drew near Los Feliz Boulevard. Suddenly the animal, frightened by something, bolted. Mintz, unable to control the horse, sought desperately to cling to the saddle. As it galloped by he reached out and attempted to grab the pole, the detectives believe. In the effort to save himself his head struck the pole. The force of the impact broke his neck. He died instantly, the detectives said.

BUDGET SHIFT UP TODAY

City Council will Consider Increasing Funds to Overcome Departmental Deficits

The City Council this morning will consider the report of the finance committee, based upon recommendations of Budget Director Knox, calling for increased allocations to departments of $512,510.

This shifting about of the budget is required by the fact that the Council, believing that income would fall approximately $1,000,000 below Mayor Porter's first estimate, reduced departmental expenditures by $993,000, setting up that sum in special funds, termed unappropriated balance No. 1 and unappropriated balance No. 2.

It is proposed to appropriate from these special funds $209,860, to cover deficits which have arisen in departments during July, August and September. For the remaining nine months it is recommended that $225,000 be appropriated for salaries in addition to the present budget, and $77,650 for additional expense and equipment purchases.

The engineering bureau has the largest deficit for the three months period, amounting to $135,000; the smallest deficit, $30, arises from the Board of Mechanical Engineers. The Department of Building and Safety has a deficit of $24,500, and the custodian a deficit of $12,000.

The appropriations for the departments for the following nine months range from a high of $42,000 for the engineering bureau to a low of $130 for the Department of Airports.

Of the $77,650 for expense and equipment, $15,000 goes to the engineer for trucks and trailers, and $41,000 for other supplies, $5000 to the Health Department for mileage, $550 to the Humane Department for pound equipment and mileage, and $16,000 to the Police Department for provisions, photographic supplies, lubricants and miscellaneous.

The danger line will be approached, according to the report, in handling the reserve fund toward the end of the year. This fund is built up to carry the city over the "dry" months preceding the incoming of tax money in December. The report says the reserve fund now contains cash amounting to $4,219,-$30.96. It will be necessary to withdraw between now and December 15, $3,200,000 for departments, while appropriated but not transferred is $150,000 for the jail, $480,000 for unmetered water service, and $375,434 for sewer construction. This will leave but $14,416.96 in the city's bank balance on December 15.

GASOLINE TO BE BOOSTED CENT TODAY

Industry Watching Few Companies Who Failed to Join Move

With six of the larger producers of gasoline ready for a price advance of 1 cent in their product at the opening of business today, the interest of the petroleum industry was centered on those companies who have not announced a price change. The advanced price was announced Friday by the Standard Oil Company of California, coupled with a new reduced schedule for crude-oil purchases.

A statement issued by the Standard Oil declared that the price changes in gasoline and crude oil were necessary in an effort to save the Federal petroleum conservation program, and pointed out that unless the independent refiners were given relief from a no-profit situation, they would undoubtedly open their own shut-in wells.

Associated Oil yesterday had come to no decision about the rise today, but officials of that company pointed out that the increase could be made effective in an hour's time. Stations selling products of the Texas Company were likewise without word from the company on a price change.

Service stations throughout the State were reported in news dispatches yesterday to be enjoying a good volume of business from motorists anxious for a full tank before the new price is effective this morning, and in turn the station operators kept tank wagons busy "filling 'em up."

SELF-MADE NOMINATION RULED OUT

Democrat Who Wrote in Own Name Cannot Go on Ticket, Counsel Reports

When one vote was cast for Leon Westmoreland, one he wrote in for himself, for Assemblyman in the Sixty-seventh District, it was not sufficient to nominate him for the ticket in the November election even though he has no opponents.

This is the view of Deputy County Counsel Cross, whose opinion will be heard this morning by the Board of Supervisors.

In a recent communication to the Supervisors, Westmoreland stated he voted for himself in the primary election by writing his name in on the Democratic ballot. He had no opponents. He wrote to ask if he could be declared the nominee. According to the County Counsel's office he cannot.

Deputy County Counsel Cross in his opinion declares that the direct primary law requires that a write-in nominee have votes equal to 1 per cent of the votes cast at the last general election for the office. In the Sixty-seventh District, he says, it requires 240 votes to be eligible for a place on the November ballot.

"The single vote cast for Westmoreland is not sufficient to make him a nominee," the opinion states.

CLERKS' RULE WAIVED

The Board of Civil Service Commissioners has notified the City Council that City Clerk Dominguez has been granted exemption from civil-service provisions for a number of clerks needed to mail out street-improvement notices.

QUAKES CAUSE COUNTESS VIOLENT HEART TREMORS

Whenever there's an earthquake anywhere the Countess Mena Hamon's heart flutters. It flutters so unerringly, she says, science is puzzled. One of the peculiarities of her sensitiveness is that the farther off the earth shocks the more acutely she feels them. Last night, in her home at Vista street and Hollywood Boulevard, which she and her husband have just rented, she said her symptoms have caused her to be regarded as a human seismograph, as is only one other known person, this being a man living in Bavaria.

"Aboard the Orduna last year, while coming to America with my husband, I began one evening to scream suddenly in the dining-room," said the Countess. "My husband told the ship captain it was doubtless because of an earthquake somewhere. It was disclosed this was the exact time shocks were reported at Adrianople, Turkey. I experienced severe stabbing pains in the heart, which became even more severe next day when new shocks occurred in Japan."

The Countess said it was not uncommon for her to become unconscious and remain so for hours after recording an earthquake. An area of sensitiveness remains on her body, over the heart, as if from an electrical contact, she added. Her sensitiveness to the tremors is most pronounced, she said, when they occur within a radius of from 7000 to 10,000 miles.

"As they come nearer, curiously enough," continued the Countess, "the pain diminishes. Recently, when slight shocks occurred in Los Angeles and Southern California I experienced no pain whatever in the heart, but later I became exceedingly ill."

Countess Hamon said among the important earthquakes she has recorded are the Italian shocks, which

NEW GIANT X-RAY TUBE BUILT TO FIGHT DISEASE

Caltech Scientist Doubles Power of Rays Which May Even Surpass Radium in Healing Power

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Sept. 14.—A new giant X-ray tube which promises to unleash healing powers which cannot be approached even with the use of costly radium has been developed to a high point of efficiency at the California Institute of Technology, it was learned today.

The California Institute physicists do not profess to have discovered a new cure for cancer, tuberculosis or other diseases, but they admit that the new tube more than answers the recent appeal by the Radiological Research Institute of New York for tubes to produce X-rays of a hardness and penetration hitherto unknown.

The tube was designed and developed in the California Institute's high-tension laboratory by Dr. C. C. Lauritsen and his associates, Dr. Robert A. Millikan serving in an advisory capacity. Funds for the research were furnished by the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

HOPES SURPASSED

To prove established indications that this tube is destined to revolutionize X-ray healing, additional research must be conducted jointly by eminent physicians, biologists and physicists, and additional funds must be furnished by humanitarians.

In appealing to physicists to devise a more powerful X-ray tube, Dr. Rollin H. Stevens of Detroit, secretary of the Radiological Research Institute, declared a few weeks ago, "We now produce X-rays of from 6000 to 250,000 volts, and if we went to 300,000 or 400,000 volts we could get practically radium rays from an X-ray tube, and we know results would be much better. But we cannot go that high, for we lack the tubes to stand it."

At the very moment Dr. Stevens was broadcasting this appeal, Dr. Lauritsen and his associates were producting X-rays with more than 600,000 volts, twice the potential urgently requested.

TESTS COME FIRST

The California Institute, in brief, has developed a tube adapted to emit rays of a potency comparable to that of radium in the treatment of certain forms of cancer, tuberculosis, skin diseases and asthma. Before using the high-potential X-rays for healing human beings, however, exhaustive experiments with diseased rodents must be performed to determine safe dosage.

Despite the necessary delay of months or years required for adaptation of the tube for medical use, the actual perfecting of the tube is asserted to have knocked down the greatest physical barrier to the uninterrupted progress of X-ray healing.

A week ago, Dr. Elice McDonald, director of cancer research in the graduate school of medicine, University of Pennsylvania, announced at a meeting of the American Chemical Society that experiments indicate that the Coffey-Humber extract is not proving a success in the treatment of cancer, and that the only effective treatment is by means of surgery, radium and X-ray.

GREAT IMPORTANCE

That declaration naturally makes tonight's revelation of the successful development of a super X-ray tube of overshadowing importance at this time.

Dr. McDonald urged that the United States establish centers for cancer treatment. He expressed the opinion that with adequate supplies of X-ray equipment and radium, these treatment centers would save the lives of 30,000 persons annually. It is pointed out by local radiologists that in view of the prohibitive cost of radium ($70,000 for a single gram) the greatest hope of establishing such cancer centers rests in the substitution of less costly super X-ray tubes for the radium.

The tube with which Dr. Lauritsen has been experimenting for the last three years recently was rebuilt to allow operation and observation at close range with a minimum of danger.

Measuring ten feet in length and twelve inches in diameter, the tube is mounted on a concrete housing or "dugout," approximately fourteen feet square and eight feet high.

This dugout is divided into two small rooms, the operator's chamber and the X-ray chamber. Into the latter protrudes the steel base of the tube, near which are located the pumps for maintaining a vacuum in the tube.

Without steel shields, the twelve-

RAW-PRODUCTS EXCHANGE BORN

Commodities Trading-House Plan Announced

Seats for 1100 Brokers and Producers Arranged

Organization's Advantages Listed by McNaughton

Formation of a commodity exchange in Los Angeles to handle the products of eleven western States was announced yesterday by J. A. McNaughton, vice-president and general manager of the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards.

Known as the California Commodity Exchange, it has in its membership 1100 brokers and producers and will provide an open market both for spot and future deliveries of western products, Mr. McNaughton said.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

Announcement of the president of the new exchange was not made, but he is a man of national prominence and an authority on international commodities, it was stated.

To undertake the work of putting the exchange in active operation, a special committee has been named consisting of Mr. McNaughton, Dr. W. D. Moriarty, director of the school of merchandising of the University of Southern California, and C. C. Hine, vice-president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and vice-president and general manager of the Globe Grain and Milling Company.

"Firms interested in trade in raw products have for years recognized the need of a market providing facilities for trading in spot and future deliveries," said Mr. McNaughton. "We are now prepared to offer such facilities for all commodities produced by the eleven western States in such volume and with such possibilities of accurate grading as will justify their admission to the Exchange.

"The advantages of a general commodity exchange over exchanges for single commodities or single groups of commodities are not only more adequate financial backing but a more expert organization than most individual commodities could support and a clearing house for marketing information on all western commodities.

MEMBERSHIP LIMITED

"Though the membership is limited to 1100 seats, it will not be limited to any one locality or to any one country. We propose to create an international market place in Los Angeles.

"Seats are now being subscribed for, not only by brokers but by banks, merchants and producers.

"The purposes of the exchange are to maintain an absolutely free market for western products and commodities under one roof, to provide a market for both spot and future deliveries, to procure and distribute authentic information on crops, prices, markets, etc., to establish standard grades to be used in each trade, to set up an inexpensive and simplified method of arbitration of commercial disputes, and, in short, to provide the most modern facilities for enabling the producer to reach the consumer with a minimum of time, expense and risk."

SIGNAL PETITION HEARD

A request that traffic signals be installed at the intersection of Beverly Boulevard and Reno street has been referred by the City Council to the Police Commission and to the Traffic and Street Lighting Committee.

BEACH REGULATIONS URGED

Playground Commission Asks Laws for Bathers; Dress and False Alarmists Covered

A request to the City Council for passage of an ordinance governing the use of public beach and tidelands has been made by the Los Angeles Playground and Recreation Commission, which has formulated beach rules and regulations in a tentative draft of the measure.

The proposed ordinance will make it unlawful for any bather to swim more than 400 feet from shore unless accompanied by a boat. It will prohibit persons from anchoring any craft or float from which persons may swim without obtaining permission of the commission.

Another section makes it unlawful for any boat operated by machinery to come within 400 feet of the shore set aside for bathers, except to land or depart from a pier.

Bathing-suit regulations provide that it shall be unlawful to wear any bathing suit in which two straps are not secured over the shoulders and bathers will not be allowed to appear on ocean front walks unless wearing a wrap covering the body to below the knee.

Other regulations prohibit fires except at designated places. Tents must be open on two sides and may be pitched only within areas set aside for the purpose. Boisterous, profane and threatening conduct are prohibited. Articles must not be sold without permission of the board. Solicitation for trade or circulation of petitions is regulated.

It is made unlawful to throw or strike a ball except within certain areas or to fish in bathing areas during the summer months. Assemblages, meetings, lectures or public exhibitions require permits from the board. Dogs must be on leash and horses or vehicles are prohibited on public beaches.

The ordinance will make it unlawful falsely and purposely to call a life guard for help or falsely summon him from his station or misdirect his attention.

It also provides for regulation of all craft operating opposite bathing areas, requiring them to conform to Federal navigation regulations.

Violations of the ordinance provide a fine of from $5 to $200 or imprisonment in the City Jail from five days to six months, or both.

TWO movie divorces in the same day seem to point out this moral:

A beauteous young lady torn with the high emotions of the divine passion is grand and inspiring; but the same young lady torn with high emotion over gas bills by the home and fireside is not so comforting as a steady diet.

HER TEARS DRIED UP

However, the emotional queen of passion has her side, too. One such told me the story of the wreck of her domesticity. She met a young author gentleman who wrote for the movies. He read her one of his stories and she was so overcome that she wept copious tears. Flattered, he promptly dragged her away to the altar. After they were married he spent most of the time reading his manuscripts to her and was furious because she did not throw another fit of weeping with every climax. "I am an emotional actress and all that," she said, "but I'll be darned if I can keep tears ready to turn on like a faucet." And so she gave him the air.

RUBBER

The British are usually a shrewd business people; but they made one tragic business blunder. This was the attempt to corner the world's supply of rubber. For a few weeks they boosted the price of tires to the point where a $15 tire cost $40. In the end they massacred the goose that laid the golden egg.

No group of men will again be able to control rubber. Rubber from guayule plants and now rubber from crude oil has opened up new fields that throw the market wide open.

Incidentally, it also ends the idea originating in Europe of compelling the United States to pay for the war.

NIGHT WINDS TO BLOW

This is going to be an early winter with a lot of rain—which will be good for movie-picture houses and murder for miniature golf courses.

WEATHER REFUGE

It is a curious fact, but any extremes of weather help the big downtown movie houses. The cash customers go in to get cool in summer and warm in winter.

MARRIAGE MARKETS

There is more than a jest to Will Rogers's remarks about the divorcees in Reno getting their trousseaux ready. The divorced wife of Sinclair Lewis recently wrote a story of Reno for one of the magazines. She said that the women waiting for the great event in court spent all their time beautifying themselves—preparing to make a good showing in the re-marriage mart.

SPORTS—GOOD AND BAD

After the bad smells from the prize fighting, the big polo games come like a refreshing breeze. The way those English players tore into a hopeless game was the final test of fine and honorable sportsmanship.

Unless it is possible to replace the California Boxing Commission with some live, capable man in place of these pathetic, fussy old publicity-seekers whose one motive is to get their names into the papers; and unless boxing can get rid of these rat managers it would be well to stop ring fighting in this State.

In most cases the fighters themselves are all right. For the Sister Shoots Mentally Sick Woman to Death in Home and Tries to End Own Life

"NERVES" HELD KILLING CAUSE

Suspect, However, Unable to Explain Tragedy

Relatives Blame Constarit Laments of Victim

Latter Always Bemoaning Children's Absence

Incessant lamentation by Mrs. Mabel Agnes Steele over her enforced separation from her children led to her death yesterday at the hands of her sister, Mrs. Ruth B. Weimer, with whom she had lived at 419 East Thirty-seventh street since her release from the Norwalk State Hospital about a month ago.

That, at least, is the only motive the police have been able to find for the strange crime in which a woman, apparently ardently devoted to her mentally sick sister, is asserted to have suddenly rushed upstairs in their home, procured her husband's .38-caliber revolver and shot her sister to death. After firing three shots which hit Mrs. Steele in the neck and caused almost instant death, Mrs. Weimer fired the remaining two in the gun at herself but missed.

WITNESSES' STORIES

The situation which led to the sudden breaking of Mrs. Weimer's nerves, was reconstructed by the police mainly from the stories of her husband, J. H. Weimer, who was away from the home when the shooting occurred; her niece, Evelyn Raine, 17 years of age, who was in a room adjoining the hallway in which the shooting took place, and J. W. Hill, a roomer, who was in the yard at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Steele, who was 41, was the mother of three children, Fred, 7; Maretta, 4, and Nadine, 16 months. A little more than a year ago her husband, Glenn Steele, disappeared with the two older children and he has not been heard from since. The absence of her children preyed so on Mrs. Steele's mind that she attempted suicide by drinking poison. When taken to the psychopathic ward of the General Hospital she made another attempt on her life there and then was committed to Norwalk.

TAKEN BY SISTER

Meanwhile her baby daughter was placed in the care of another sister, Mrs. Edith Purdy, who lives in Sparks, Nev. At the beginning of last August, Mrs. Weimer, who is 38 and is employed as a cashier in a wholesale meat market, had her sister released from Norwalk and took her into her own home.

Whether or not Mrs. Steele was actually cured of her mental malady when she was released, it is evident that she had recurrences of what her relatives referred to as "spells" during the past month. At these times she hysterically bemoaned her separation from her children and her sister attempted to soothe her.

THREAT CITED

According to the niece, her aunt had such a spell yesterday afternoon and Mrs. Weimer's attempts to soothe her finally took on a note of exasperation which suddenly culminated in the statement:

"If you don't stop that I'll kill you."

"I don't care, I want to die," the girl said she heard Mrs. Steele reply.

Then Mrs. Weimer went upstairs, the girl said, but she didn't realize that her aunt was actually putting into execution her threat until she heard the shots. Then she dashed from the house and summoned Hill from the yard. Hill came in with a neighbor, he said, and found Mrs. Weimer had run upstairs to seek bullets to reload the revolver and kill herself. The two men overpowered her, took the gun away from her and called the police. When Detective Lieutenants Mess and Knepper arrived from University Station with an ambulance, Mrs. Steele was dead.

According to the detectives, Mrs. Weimer said to them when they came in, "It was better that way; the only mistake I made was that I didn't kill myself."

QUARREL DENIED

When she was taken to the University Station and booked on a charge of suspicion of murder, the woman was unwilling to say anything in explanation of her act that would reflect discredit on her sister. She denied she had quarreled with Mrs. Steele, saying there was no reason for the two of them to quarrel as they had a deep affection for each other.

Incoherently, she protested that her dead sister had been the sweetest and most lovable of women and pleaded with her questioners not to conclude that her own act was caused by any defect in her sister's character.

Asked definitely whether she had believed that it was better for her sister to die, that it was an act of mercy to kill her sister, she said that she had had no such thought. She insisted that she had had no thought at all about the shooting until it took place and then added that she did not know why she did it. Even after she had been given a respite from questioning and had somewhat regained her composure, she would give no explanation of the shooting. She knew it had happened, she said, but it all seemed unreal and she could not understand how she could have fired the shots.

In Japan the cost of living has greatly decreased in the last twelve months.

BROADWAY STORE HELD UP

Girl in Candy Shop Near Seventh Street Robbed; Female Bandit Reappears in City

A daylight hold-up perpetrated within a half-block of what Los Angeles proudly designates as the "busiest corner in the world" yesterday increased to seven the total number of robberies reported to police by store-keepers and pedestrians over the week-end. It was committed in the middle of the forenoon as scores of persons passed on foot and in automobiles, and netted $30 from the cash register of the Martha Washington Candy Store at 634 South Broadway.

Alighting from a roadster at the curb, two youths entered the shop and with drawn revolvers confronted Miss Mary Tomlin, clerk in charge.

"Keep your mouth shut and you won't get hurt," one of the pair commanded as his companion plundered the cash register. Fearing that she might be killed if she cried for help Miss Tomlin was forced helplessly to watch the pair as they backed out of the store and drove away. Unable to find a policeman, Miss Tomlin telephoned her first report of the robbery to Central Station.

After an absence of six months the female bandit has reappeared. Charles Logue reported that a stylishly-dressed blond girl drove the automobile of a bandit who held him up in a gasoline service station at 5566 Santa Monica Boulevard and robbed him of eight gallons of gasoline and $20 in cash.

J. V. Van Ebera, manager, was the victim of a note bandit in the Western Union Telegraph Company branch at 1117 North Western avenue. The bandit, Van Ebera stated, handed him a check for $500, on the reverse side of which was written, "This is a stick-up. Cash this check. All currency. Make it snappy. One false move and I will plug you full of holes. Don't look or speak to anybody but me if you value your life. My pal has this dump covered from the car, so watch yourself."

The bandit carried a revolver concealed beneath his coat. Van Ebera reported he gave the man $80 in cash and $120 in checks. The latter then backed out of the office and joined a confederate in a car parked in front.

Just as they were closing a Piggly-Wiggly grocery at 2925 Beverly Boulevard, A. C. Norman and Ray Dodge, clerks, were held up by two armed bandits. Failing to find the store's money, the pair took $7 from Norman and $25 from Dodge. After deliberating whether to lock up the clerks, the bandits let them go and themselves placed the padlock on the front door before they fled.

While parked in front of the home of K. E. Sugahara at 1425 West Thirty-sixth Place at an early morning hour, Sugahara and Miss Wone Kuwahara of Pico, were held up by two Negro bandits and robbed of $12.

George Harmandas reported two bandits entered his lunch counter at 799 West Seventh street, San Pedro, and, after threatening him with death if he resisted their demands, robbed him of $6.

Two pseudo passengers held up D. R. Sherman, taxi-cab driver at Santa Barbara and Arlington avenues, and robbed him of $5, his cap and cab.

Sophie Levine of 2629 Dobinson street was the victim of two purse snatchers who robbed her of her purse containing $14 at Mott and Malabar streets, she reported to police.

BANKER BACK FROM EUROPE

J. T. Cooper Made Study of Conditions in Russia

Populace Forced to Work at Minimum Wage

Food Prices High and Quality Poor

After a three-month's trip to Europe, John T. Cooper, vice-president, Security-First National Bank, returned yesterday and described the ten days he spent in Russia observing living and economic conditions in that republic as the most interesting in all his travel experience. Commenting upon the great reluctance of most of its immediate neighbors to enter any business relations with soviet Russia, Mr. Cooper declared that in some respects the credit basis of the Russian nation at this time might be considered comparatively firm, provided the political soundness of the present regime could be conceded.

JOHN T. COOPER

HIGH PRESSURE

Mr. Cooper explained this statement by saying that the country has no national debt, and that it has a population of 150,000,000 people working under pressure at minimum wages. "So far as we could learn, wages at present run from as low as $17.50 per month for low-grade unskilled labor, to a maximum of $115 per month for skilled workmen and technical engineers."

Crossing to Europe on the same boat with Mr. Cooper was Tom E. Campbell, Montana wheat magnate, who was called to Russia to make a twenty-day airplane inspection of the soviet farms and consult with the government as to the marketing and warehousing of this year's wheat crop.

SOCIAL ORDER REVERSED

"Under the present soviet regime, the cardinal principle of which is state ownership of all property, the visitor is immediately struck by the fact that he is viewing a social and economic condition completely reversed from that to which he is accustomed," said Mr. Cooper. "It is most astounding, for example, to walk along the thoroughfares of the cities and pass block after block of stores boarded up and abandoned, and only occasionally to come upon a government shop with its cues of patient ticket holders who have perhaps stood in line for hours waiting to make their modest purchases.

"The streets are crowded with people, particularly in Moscow, and the street cars and trains are jammed at all hours, but the extreme scarcity of automobiles reminds the tourist of conditions in the United States twenty-five years ago. The Russian Ford factories are under construction but production of cars has not yet begun."

FINDS WOMEN JUDGES

Mr. Cooper located a few small courts dealing with trivial family differences. Judges in these small courts are usually women, he learned. Civil suits concerning private property are nonexistent, since there is no such property. The courts of higher jurisdiction apparently are entirely concerned with cases of a political or semipolitical nature, according to Mr. Cooper.

Discussing divorce and marriage laws, Cooper said that, while the rules on this subject are lax, the government does not tolerate abuse of them. "There is considerable evidence that the smaller and weaker churches are being forced to combine into single stronger units and that the property of the former is being appropriated by the government for its own uses. It is also true that the government makes no secret of its complete disregard for things religious. It sees no economic justification for religion and acts accordingly."

TRAIN FARE CHEAP

Mr. Cooper said that there is no restriction on the movements of the Russians within the boundaries of their own country. Literal equality being stressed in Russia, trains are of but one order, third class, and the fare is cheap. During the peak of summer travel everyone is moving from one town to the next. In one Russian station on Sunday afternoon, Mr. Cooper estimated that there were 10,000 Russians waiting to leave the city, each with his earthly possessions in a bundle and on his back. Many of them had been waiting and sleeping in the station for three or four days hoping to buy tickets on the successive trains before they were sold out.

Mrs. McPherson Mends Slowly

Aimee Semple McPherson, recuperating at a mountain retreat, was reported still weak, but slowly improving, by her physician, Dr. Edward H. Williams, who returned last night from a visit to the evangelist's bedside.

"Mrs. McPherson is weak, but in no danger and is recovering nicely," Dr. Williams said in discussing the condition of the head of Angelus Temple.

SENIOR ICE HOCKEY LOOP PLANS CONFAB

At 6:15 a practice session of hockey is to be held at which time players will be given the once over by pilots scouting for talent.

MEXICAN FIESTA COMMENCES

Doing Their Bit

Alicia Aguilor and Reubin Culveaux in Mexican folk dance at Luna Park independence fiesta.

AN OPEN-AIR barbecue and a program of dancing and music opened the two-day fiesta commemorating the 120th anniversary of the independence of the Republic of Mexico yesterday at Luna Park, with 3000 persons in attendance. Tomorrow in the second day's festivities the program given yesterday will be repeated. Today no celebration is scheduled.

The stirring music of the Mexican national hymn, sung by the audience and led by Roberto Guzman and Alphonso Pedrosa, was one of the features of the afternoon. Dances from the Argentine, Spain and Mexico, under the direction of Trinidad Goni, who recently arrived in Los Angeles from Europe, were presented in native costume. The barbecue with its Mexican dishes was supplied by Chef Fred Ramirez.

Thousands of persons were guests of the Native Sons of Mexico and affiliated Mexican organizations, which is backing the fiesta.

Tomorrow Dr. Jose A. Saens, Consul to Panama, will be one of the patriotic speakers and Manuel Carrillo will speak in the Spanish language. Signora Constansa Coronel, mezzo-soprano, will sing several solos in Spanish. Antonio Moreno and Maria Alva, motion-picture actors, will be guests at the closing ball, which will be held in the evening.

Tomorrow being Independence Day the committees will entertain the Mexican Consul, his aides and representatives of the Los Angeles government.

Wind Gauge to be Installed

Within the next two weeks the Los Angeles County Flood Control District will erect a scientifically accurate wind-gauge machine in Long Beach at the mouth of Alamitos Bay, similar to those in service at Los Angeles Harbor and the government Weather Bureau.

Upon observations from the gauge records the flood-control district engineers will determine the drift of the sands and the influence of the ocean breezes upon the tide movements. The instrument will be a part of the equipment used in the preliminary work leading to the construction of the new channel and outlet for the San Gabriel River into Alamitos Bay, which the county will construct at a cost of $661,000.

The wind gauge will be built on a high tower on the tip of land extending into the ocean on the west side of the entrance to the bay.

Court Quashes Fraud Charge

Charges of defrauding an innkeeper against Mrs. Hannah Noonan Gordon, mother of Sally O'Neill and Molly O'Day, film actresses, were dismissed by Municipal Judge Eagan when the case was called for trial. Deputy City Prosecutor Ida V Wells told the court that evidence against the woman was not sufficient to convict her.

Mrs. Gordon was accused of failing to pay $500 to Mrs. Herman Miller, operator of an apartment house at 569 North Rossmore avenue, due as rent for the month of May, last, on two apartments.

STUDENT FLYER, HIT BY SPEEDBOAT, SUES

Run over by a speedboat while swimming off the Venice Pier, Ernest Wekerle, aviation student, has sued Thomas Monise, the Venice Speedboat Company and others because of injuries suffered in the accident. Wekerle demands $25,500 damages for injuries to his leg which, he says, will make him permanently lame. The affair occurred August 10, last, at the foot of Paloma street, Venice.

Mrs. Lane, regardless of the man's threats, pursued him out of the house and down the street, screaming for help. Her cries were heard by Harris Fluck of 611 West Sixty-first street and Charles Deadman of 302 North Alexandria avenue, who leaped after the suspect and brought him down with a couple of flying tackles. CHAMBER FINDS NEW MARKETS

Valuable Work of Commerce Organization Shown

Manufacturers Here Receive South American Orders

Trade Representative Sent on Scouting Tour

New foreign markets available for more than 150 manufacturing concerns in this area have recently been uncovered through the work of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce foreign trade commissioner in Colombia, according to Secretary-Manager Arnoll in disclosing progress being made by the local organization in stimulating foreign commerce.

Operating under the direction of Clarence H. Matson, Egbert Adams, foreign trade commissioner to South America, has prepared a number of surveys of the various countries visited that have resulted in valuable contacts being established for manufacturers in Los Angeles county.

SAMPLE OF WORK

How the commissioner works is illustrated in a newly issued survey dealing with the market offered in Bogota, Colombia, capital city of the South American republic.

During a lengthy period spent in this city Adams has contacted all of the leading retail and wholesale merchants of the city, advancing information on products made in the Los Angeles metropolitan area, with the result that more than 100 manufacturers here have been requested to submit prices and samples to the Bogota firms.

In addition to this service a comprehensive survey of general conditions in Bogota, a city of 250,000 population, is completely covered. Business and general conditions, bank statistics, improvements projected and under way and a careful analysis of the general attitude toward American manufacturers is concisely set forth in the survey by Mr. Adams. Shipping facilities and suggestions for routing consignments of goods is another important feature.

RESULTS EVIDENT

"Mr. Adams has been at work in South America for several months," Arnoll said in discussing the trade commissioner's work, "and we are highly satisfied with the results obtained, since several large shipments of recent date through our port are directly traceable to trade opportunities that he has developed for manufacturers in this area. He is a fluent scholar in Spanish and Portuguese and has had considerable previous experience in Central and South America representing American interests.

"It is the type of work that the Chamber of Commerce is doing through our foreign commerce department that is responsible in a large measure to our marked port development in recent years. The recent showing of phenomenal increase in the number of local concerns engaged in foreign trade should also be attributed, to a large extent, to the opportunities for foreign selling that have been placed in their hands by this organization."

OFFICER TO FACE TRIAL IN PERJURY

Policeman Charged with Testifying Falsely in Slaying Case of Bost

Fred Fahrman, Los Angeles police officer, today is expected to go to trial before Superior Judge Tryon charged with giving perjured testimony in favor of another officer, William J. Bost, a year ago.

Bost was tried and convicted of manslaughter for the slaying of Cristobal Silvas Sierra when the youth sought to escape after being arrested for a misdemeanor. Fahrman is asserted to have testified that Bost did not fire his gun, indicating that someone else shot the 17-year-old youth.

DISMISSAL OF PERJURY CHARGE TO BE ASKED

Dismissal of a perjury charge against Max Berensweig, former Los Angeles police officer, will be asked today in Superior Judge Schauer's court. The motion is scheduled to be made by Arthur Veitch, deputy District Attorney, to enable the District Attorney to place the entire matter before the grand jury again and reindict the defendant in the hope that additional evidence may be obtained.

Berenzweig is accused of giving perjured testimony during a liquor trial in December, 1928, to free a friend, John Barr, who was accused of possession of a still.

SUSPECT IN UTAH DEATH TAKEN HERE

Glass Thrown in Street Leads to Arrest; and Then Fingerprints Fix Identity

Pete Kowe, alias Pete Kallos, 45 years of age, arrested here Saturday night for throwing broken glass into the street, was identified yesterday through fingerprints at the central police record bureau as wanted for the murder of Bill Argentos in Salt Salt City on May 29, last, according to Detective Lieutenant Anderson of the fugitive detail.

Kowe, according to information wired here by Chief of Police Burbidge of Salt Lake City, shot and killed Argentos over a $40 bill due the latter. He fled in his automobile but it was not known in which direction he went. No trace of him was found, police say, until Saturday night when Officer Thomas of the vice squad found him at Los Angeles and Winston streets.

Not knowing that he was wanted for any other crime, Thomas attempted his arrest on a possession-of-liquor charge. Thomas stated he took a bottle from his pocket and threw it into the street. Without evidence to substantiate a liquor charge Thomas then took him in custody for breaking glass in the street. He was held on the murder charge when his fingerprints were compared with those sent here from Salt Lake City.

DRY OFFICER RETURNS

PRODUCER TO BE GIVEN FAREWELL BANQUET

Friends and former associates of J. G. Bachmann, who last week resigned as associate producer of Paramount Publix studios in Hollywood, will tender him a farewell banquet tonight at the Roosevelt Hotel on the eve of his departure for New York. Bachmann was associated with Paramount for a number of years, during which time he supervised productions which included Maurice Chevalier, Emil Jannings, Ernst Vadja, Hans Kraly and Ernst Lubitsch.

COMPLAINTS DISMISSED

A complaint for petty theft against Ray Sproul, and one for violating the State liquor laws against Ray Evans of 12776 Caswell street, have been dismissed by Municipal Judge Curtis. Sproul was charged with stealing $15 from Mrs. Anna Ring of 1250 South Magnolia avenue. The dismissals were ordered because both men are serving five-year terms at McNeill's Island Federal penitentiary for mail robbery.

SUIT FILED ON DEBT CLAIM OF PARROT

Asserting that on March 28, 1929, the La Fon system of billboard advertising became indebted to Kent Parrot, local attorney for $3000, as "money had and received to and for the use of the said Kent Parrot," Stanley B. Fish yesterday had on file a suit against the La Fon system for the amount involved. It is stated in the suit that Parrot assigned his claim to Fish for the purpose of legal action.

Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.—Heb. iii:12.

KNOCKING NOISES

The Chicago Commercial Association seeks to emulate New York in a public crusade against unnecessary noises. If they can shut off the "pineapple" explosions and the crack of artillery they will have accomplished something.

THE DRY CANDIDATE

In Illinois the independent drys have put up a Senatorial candidate, Lottie Holman O'Neill, a former active member of the State Legislature. This is in rebuke of Ruth Hanna McCormick, the regular Republican nominee. Mrs. O'Neill is expected to draw a lot of the dry women from both sides. Anyhow, she has tangled the situation.

MUST MARRY YOUNG

The new kingdom of the Hedjaz is proposing and pressing a law which would compel everybody over 15 years old to marry. Presumably they are to find wives in the customary oriental manner, but anyhow they are expected to wed. Possibly the Hedjaz is also eager to swell its population. Fifteen may seem rather youthful for a groom, but in that country they marry young.

MEN'S MODEL

And now it seems that William Powell has been poaching on the premises of Adolphe Menjou as the best-dressed man in Hollywood. He began to dispute the title while Adolphe was absent in France. However, give Menjou a break: he may have some creations fresh from Paris to spring upon the gaping brethren. Even then the best-clad, like Congressmen, need to be home much of the time to look after their fences.

THE BLACK BELT

Mississippi has again clouded its history by participating in the lynching of two negroes, who seem to have been guilty of nothing worse that the attempted robbery of a man and his wife. They may have had bad records and may have merited punishment but there was absolutely no warrant in mob action to the extent of taking them from the custody of regular officers of the law and brutally putting them to death. For that there is no defense.

TOO MANY LEECHES

The Germans are suffering from a plague of office-holders. Of some 60,000,000 in the republic over 1,400,000 are on the public pay roll. At least one out of every twenty-five persons is holding office of some kind under the state. This is thought to be too heavy a percentage. But the people don't know what to do about it. The administration is not in position to correct the evil—even if it was admitted. Some day something will be done—but not now.

THE YOUNG IDEA

An examination of school-teachers in an eastern city disclosed that they did not know a whole lot about the history of their country. So far as heard from practically none of them could name the Presidents in their proper order. In fact one young lady was very dubious about Abraham Lincoln. She thought he had something to do with slavery but she did not know that he had been in the White House. He might have been Simon Legree for all she knew.

Another one had heard of George Washington as the father of his country, but whether he was the natural father or merely a daddy by adoption she did not know. She did not know any of the details of the Revolutionary War or Washington's ascent to the Presidency. She thought he must have had a big family—else he could not be the papa of his people.

Most of the teachers knew about the martyrdom of Lincoln and McKinley but a great many of them overlooked Garfield. They even remembered Roosevelt better as a warrior than as a President. More than one of them thought Daniel Webster wrote the dictionary, but there was another who billed him as George Washington's Secretary of State. Many of them never heard of John Marshall but a lot of them pegged Benjamin Franklin as the inventor of lightning rods.

In teaching the young idea how to shoot some of these ladies must be slightly wide of the mark.

MONETARY STANDARDS

About once in every generation the cheap-money fallacy pops up and sweeps off their feet a few of short memories and lacking in historical and economic knowledge. It is especially apt to happen at a time of general commercial depression. The United States during the past century went through an era of wildcat banking during the 1830's to 1840's, suffered from Greenbackism about 1876, and from an incursion of the free silver fallacy in the late '90's, all differing forms of the same illusion. It is not surprising, therefore, that new attacks on the gold standard should be launched at this time. A Canadian paper of some standing proposes a world silver standard, or what amounts to it, urging its "restoration" to a twelve-to-one ratio with gold, as a solvent for the world's financial difficulties.

This goes Bryan's 16-to-1 ratio some 25 per cent better, or perhaps it should be said worse. At the present price of 35 to 36 cents an ounce, the actual ratio of silver to gold is about fifty-nine to one. The establishment by law of a twelve-to-one ratio would amount to the repudiation of nearly four-fifths of all debts and obligations throughout the world (except those specifically payable in gold) and would multiply world prices substantially by five, while wages and salaries would be a long time catching up. As a device for improving world prosperity such an inflation would have grave drawbacks. The proposer will hardly be able to sell, to the American people at least, a 20-cent dollar; they rejected a 50-cent dollar thirty-four years ago by an overwhelming majority.

This is not to say that the gold standard is actually or even theoretically perfect. It has been severely criticised recently by such economists as Irving Fisher and J. M. Keynes, on the ground of lack of stability. Both gentlemen have put forward schemes for a managed currency as a substitute, but the plans themselves do not stand analysis as well as the gold standard, being subject to the fundamental difficulty that a managed currency must be managed by somebody and that somebody is liable to human error, or what is as bad, likely to be accused of it.

The saving feature of the gold standard is that it cannot be affected materially by any human action. The supply of gold responds to demand to a limited degree, in that mining of it is carried on more actively when its price (measured in goods) is high; but this affects the total volume in use only very slowly. Discovery of new and rich gold fields or the exhaustion of present mines would have a larger and swifter effect, but these are matters of chance, beyond human control.

It is not quite fair to either Dr. Fisher or Dr. Keynes to describe their plans as "managed currency;" neither can be reduced with more than a vague approximation of truth, to such a short and simple descriptive phrase, and both plans have aspects that are quite attractive theoretically, but neither is making any substantial headway toward acceptance. Human psychology fights shy of novelty, and frequently with good reason.

Neither Keynes nor Fisher, however, is an inflationist and it is inflationism pure and simple that this twelve-to-one scheme proposes. As such, it is as full of holes as a Switzerland cheese. That such a ratio, or any artificial ratio, between gold and silver is impossible of maintenance does not need demonstration; it is an economic axiom, known as Gresham's Law, that if any such thing were attempted gold would go out of circulation at once and silver would become the sole currency except for paper equivalents. There would at once be monetary, credit, industrial and commercial turmoil on an enormous scale until the world had adjusted itself, with a terrible wrench, to the new situation and then the world would be found going on much as before on its new basis, an inferior one to gold because of the difference in bulk. The same old tribulations would have changed neither in nature or degree.

Gold, with all its drawbacks—which, after all, are minor compared with its merits—is the best monetary basis which the world has yet discovered and it should be clung to at least until a demonstrably better one is found. Economists have pointed out that the decline in gold production since the war is one of the factors contributing to the present commercial depression. While this is unoubtedly true, it is no argument for discarding the gold standard in favor of a debased currency. The decrease in the world's gold supply was due to economic conditions created by the war. When wages and the cost of machinery more than doubled during that period, the great increase in the cost of gold production made unprofitable the mining of the lower grades of gold ore everywhere and more than half the gold mines on three continents closed down. Latterly there have been indications of a general resumption of operations, in turn due to the decline of labor costs and the price of materials. This of itself promises an important contribution toward the return of business to normalcy.

Here again the actual connection of the monetary standard, as such, with this prospective improvement is at most indirect. The lack of balance between production and distribution is imperfectly understood; but there is at least one certainty in the situation, which is that inflation is no cure. The world has tried that repeatedly. The inflation theory is completely fallacious.

A CASE OF URGENT NEED

The Dominican Republic faces an appalling situation caused by the almost unprecedented West Indian hurricane which, on the 3rd inst., laid in ruins the city of Santo Domingo and cut a wide swath of destruction across the island. With limited resources, still staggering from the cruel blow, disorganized and deprived of necessary equipment, the survivors are struggling valiantly to bring some form of order out of the present chaos. They must rely on the generosity and assistance of neighboring countries if they are to salvage anything from this terrible calamity.

Naturally the uphappy islanders look to the United States, their biggest and strongest neighbor, for first aid, knowing that the American people have never turned a deaf ear to the cry for help in periods of such widespread misery and destitution. At the first news of the plight of the people of Santo Domingo every near-by form of help immediately available was rushed to the city. This was able to relieve the worst suffering of those most seriously stricken. But the larger and heavier task of rehabilitating and repairing and rescuing still remains.

The condition of Santo Domingo is beyond the conception of those who never experienced a horror of this nature. Thousands of unidentified corpses have had to be cremated in public pyres to prevent an outbreak of the dreaded plague or epidemics of typhus and cholera. Many families are huddled together for shelter in the few buildings which escaped the hurricane. There is a dearth of food and clothing and medical supplies are insufficient. All these must be provided from the outside world.

President Hoover has taken cognizance of the dire straits in which these people find themselves and has promised them every assistance in raising a loan for the rebuilding of their city. But the need for present aid is urgent and this must come largely from voluntary contributions. There must be many big-hearted men and women in Los Angeles who through the Red Cross and the Dominican Legation will gladly contribute to the funds being raised to save these hurricane sufferers from the ills and dangers which at present still surround them.

OUR NEW CALIFORNIANS

It is said that some of the annual State picnics held in Sycamore Park and other bosky precincts in or near Los Angeles are not so well attended as in former years. This is easily understood by the student of human nature who has traced the lessening hold of the old habitat and the strengthening of the ties that bind the individual to his new environment.

A comparatively new Californian of Midwest origin and of average age or a little younger will find as time goes by and his residence here loses its novelty that much of the interest he retained in his native State during the first few years here is gone. This is largely due to what may be termed his Californialization. David Starr Jordan remarks something of the sort in his sketch of "The Californians."

A man from Indiana comes to live in California, proudly announcing that he is a Hoosier and thinking he always will be a Hoosier. For the first year or two he reads the little old home-town newspaper with his former interest and seems to be still living in the old scenes. But all the while California is growing upon him. As its strangeness wears off and he realizes that life here is freer, more comfortable and far more desirable than in the land of frost and snow the fact that Bill Jones of the old town has built a new house or that Henry Smith has married Mary Brown comes to be of no great moment to him. He would be more interested if these things happened in Highland Park or on Sunset Boulevard.

Year by year his concern as to what goes on in the old scenes grows fainter, and after a decade of residence here he will count himself a full-fledged Californian and will care little whether there are few or many Marion county natives at the State picnic, though of course he never forgets that there is such a beautiful old State as Indiana and that he was born there. And for this nobody with a spark of love for his place of birth will blame him.

TOO LATE

By James J. Montague

"Explore the world from China to Peru."—Alexander Pope.

When a country-bred lad of sixteen
And filled with illusions of hope,
I was always exceedingly keen
For the works of the late Mr. Pope.
The lines that appear at the head of this rhyme
My youthful attention arrested,
And I highly resolved, that at some future time
I would do as the poet suggested.

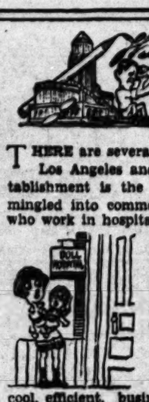
But the funds for a round-the-world tour
With all its soul stirring charm
Are excessively hard to secure
By an urchin who works on a farm.
So I had in my youth not a glimpse or a glance
Of alien costumes and faces,
And at twenty-one years had foregone every chance
Of viewing these far-away places.

Still I toiled till I calloused my hands
In the hope that sometime I'd be free
To visit the marvelous lands
Mr. Pope had advised me to see.
And at last I amassed such a sizable sum
(With the help of a few rich relations)
That I said to myself, "Now the big chance has come
To start on my peregrinations."

But rebellion is rife in Peru,
And through China resounds the rude roar
Of the armies that daily renew
Incessant continuous war.
And though for the journey I now have the price,
My old resolution is shaken,
And I fear Mr. Pope's very well-meant advice
Must remain, through my lifetime, untaken.

LEE SIDE O' LA

By Lee Shippey



THERE are several doll hospitals in Los Angeles and in no other establishment is the human touch so mingled into commerce. The people who work in hospitals for human beings have to harden themselves. They see so much of suffering that if they let their sympathies go out too much they would wreck themselves. They have to adopt a cool, efficient, businesslike form of professional sympathy. And that is best for the patients' morale as well as for their own.

Attendants in dog and cat hospitals can afford to be a little more human. But it is in the doll hospital only that there must be complete sympathy and understanding between customer and staff.

When a gray-haired woman or a bereaved young mother or a man of the hard-boiled type, looking sheepish but determined, enters a doll hospital the doctor-nurse-attendant knows there is a story coming. And always the story comes. In some hospitals explanations may not be necessary. But when the hard-boiled man takes a shoe box from under his arm, opens it to expose half a doll's head and a lot of fragments and splinters, he must explain: "It's our 2-year-old baby's—and she's—she's mighty sick—and I thought maybe—"

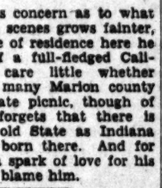
Two Dabis Have Many Little Dolls

Yesterday we visited Mrs. Anton Dahl's doll hospital on South Western avenue. Anton Dahl, you may know, is a Russian concert pianist, a pupil of Grieg, a composer and a bit of an author. He has toured in Europe and South America as well as in this country and for ten years had a studio in Blanchard Hall in Los Angeles. But some years ago he was in an automobile accident and for a long time was unable to do anything. Now he is teaching again, though he cannot travel. But in the meantime Mrs. Dahl, an English woman, made the doll hospital such an interesting place that her husband takes as much interest in its "cases" and as much delight in its "cures" as she does. When he still was not well enough to teach he could sit up in an invalid's chair and painstakingly bring back the glow of health to dolls even more battered up than he was.

Hard Luck, But No Dahldrums

Mrs. Dahl has won prizes in New York and elsewhere with her dolls and has made several for the children of motion-picture stars and other famous folk. And in repairing them she can work miracles. If enough of a doll remains to show what it looked like originally she can restore it, or if all the broken pieces are there she can, with infinite carefulness and patience, put them together again. She can do the same with shattered vases. The children of her neighborhood call her Santa Claus's mamma.

Before the Russian upheaval Dahl owned an estate in Russia and many things from that home are in the shop on Western avenue. The right side of the room, as one enters, is occupied by a replica of a Russian mantel, with typical vases and ornaments on it. Beyond are other heirlooms, tapestries, pictures and art wares and beyond them Dahl's huge piano. Every Wednesday evening Dahl gives an informal concert there. But it is the dolls which attract most of those who visit the shop and the tenderness with which the dolls are restored to soundness—for the gladdening of some childish heart or some saddened older heart—which touches them most. Many a very cheap and tawdry doll is repaired there, but it is one some invalid child loves best. And you cannot catch the spirit of the doll hospital without being a little bit sweetened and purified of the stains of a racing and struggling world.



Besides which, it's the only hospital we know of out of which every patient comes greatly benefited.

It's getting so a fellow can't pass the City Hall without thinking what a fine miniature golf course could be laid out on its lawn, if the Council were only enterprising.

The undertakers, in convention here, congratulated themselves on the progress they have made. Yep, people used to have to hire professional weepers and now all the bereaved have to do is think about the bills and they'll weep plenty themselves.

Besides that, undertakers ought to get along fine—everybody's just dying to help them.

THE WASHINGTON WASH

BY STRICKLAND GILLILAN

As revealed to trained investigators here in Washington, the Russian soviet sales methods are so cheeky they are funny. They send their sales agents to other countries to sell certain goods of their manufacture. They haven't the goods, true enough, but what of it? If they sell enough of them, they can afford to make some to deliver. It makes me think of the fellow who hung out a shingle as a lawyer in order to earn enough fees to enable him to attend law school.

Funny what buckpassers we are congenitally are. A man buys stock in a dry hole in oil territory and loses the money. Immediately that man's misfortunes become the fault of whatever administration is in progress at Washington. The fact that the administration is trying its best to enforce laws made by other administrations for the protection of suckers makes no never-minds; he says the administration ruined him. It is just as if, after the landing of the ark on Ararat, old Noah had run for office, and the dumbbells were to have said, "What—Noer? He's that guy who had that heluva big flood! Nix on him." The flood happened in Noah's administration, so, of course, he was responsible for it.

President Hoover, these days, is beginning to think up the wording of his Thanksgiving proclamation, and "gosh, how he dreads it." The croakers are in the saddle and the pollyannas singing dumb. They aren't even crooning. If, with all the nasty breaks Bert has had, with the general conditions requiring so much of his time and attention to keep humanity alive, the blood of commerce in circulation and the breath of life in its nostrils—if he can still write a good, fluent, convincing Thanksgiving proclamation, he will deserve the paraffin firetongs. There will be reams of paper torn up after a few words have been written on each sheet before he gets that document done to his satisfaction. When he thinks of the drought and the panic and the tariff revenge and the Senate and Charley Michelson, he'll feel for awhile like doing what Job's contemporaries advised that boil-bearing citizen to do. Also that will be just on the eve of his presenting the names of some nominees to the upper house for condemnation and confirmation in the order named. It is understood Henry F. Fletcher is having a wire shirt and a rhinoceros-hide "wammus" made in which to be "considered" as the head of the Tariff Commission. He'll probably need 'em, for unless the Senate has had a change of heart, an elevation of intelligence and a baptism of the milk of human kindness since last spring, Henry will be publicly accused of everything from grave-robbing to wife-beating and back down (or up) the scale, whichever of these two crimes is the lower. It takes a braver man to face the Senate than to face a broadside from real artillery.

Yes, the White House wastebaskets will be littered up with torn papers, each one containing a half-hearted beginning of a Thanksgiving proclamation. But we will have one in the long run, and it will be to our liking, as always.

Incidentally, if this will help Bert any, it is a cause for real thanksgiving that this country, hard as the jolt is to the self-indulgent, is beginning to come awake after the awful war-time drunk that taught us all to have the tastes of princes and delusions of grandeur; that we are getting our unsteady feet back on solid earth, preparatory to establishing ourselves once more on a basis of moderation, self-denial, morality, religion and mutual helpfulness; and that posterity is to be taught to work and earn instead of exclusively spending the fruit of others' struggle and privation—in short, that we are emerging from a fools' paradise. Think that one over, Mr. President! It may give you a nifty paragraph.

Little sawed-off Carlos Davila, late Chilean Ambassador in Washington, has gone home to Santiago and written powerful pieces about us. To read what he says is very stimulating to one's patriotism, after reading what the university-trained America-is-always-wrong traitors say. It might be a good idea to make all those who hate their country go and live somewhere else awhile, so as to learn to love us as much as foreigners do. One charming Washington journalist who was a Russian Jew and now believes he is a Socialist and foe of our government, was inveighing one day against America and its ideas. Then he was led into reminiscing about his sojourn in Germany at the beginning of the war, finishing with a graphic account of his return to America.

"How did you feel then?" asked a listener.

"I got down and kissed the ground," said the Americaphobe.

Little Davila is a peach of a hombre. I remember once I called on him, at his country's embassy around on Twenty-first street somewhere—L'Enfant's streets each run about six directions right there—with Art Sapp, when that Hoosier gentleman was president of Rotary International. Of course, being good Babbitts (Davila is a Rotarian,) we had to call him Carlos, and we had a chummy time. The Chilean is a newspaper man and a fine all-round scout.

The way Carlos writes about us now, apparently we are not in so bad about the Tacna-Arica affair as the professional homeland-haters would like to have us believe we are. The professional iconoclast is wrong oftener even than a pollyanna is.

The Washington laundryman that calls for Ruth Hanna McCormick's personal linen when she is in town, told me the other day (you see I know all sorts of people!) that he has not yet written any soliciting letters to Lottie O'Neal, though he has sent one birthday and one Fourth of July greeting card to Jimhamlewis. He is very firmly of the opinion (this button-remover and collar-frazzler) that one of the two—McCormick or Lewis—will come to the Senate, and that the injection of Lottie into the fight has made the election of one of the two surer. If this laundryman were a barber he couldn't straddle any better than that.

Future generations will forget whether it was Elisa or Ruth McCormick who crossed the ice pursued by bloodhounds.

Norris, you are now astraddle (with a howdah for a saddle) of the "nathi" emblemising G. O. P.

If again you make the rifle,
Spite of Bolshevistic piffle,
We are positive as anyone can be
You will pat him on the trunk
And confess it all was bunk—
Your allegiance to the party that elects you.
You'll resume your opposition,
Join again the coalition,
And do just as your cantankerousness directs you.
Should Nebraska have a crop,
Should her discontentment stop,
Should they need no more a public wailing wall,
We will see you in the breadline,
Not page one and in a headline—
Every pessimist is riding to a fall.

The line of demarcation between Republicans and Democrats in North and South Dakota is as ragged and eccentric as the fever chart of a nervous patient. It's a wise Dakotan that knows what party he belongs to and a superconscientious one who cares what party label his pet candidate wears, if any. That man Townley, one-time Nonpartisan Leaguer, certainly did open a Pandora box and toss an apple of discord into the two parties out there. Partisanism was his Humpty Dumpty to push off the wall, and all the king's wheelhorses and all the king's party men aren't having a bit of luck putting Humpty Dumpty together again. The political works are so full of monkey wrenches in that neck of the woods that you can't tell where the machine leaves off and the wrenches begin. It takes mighty good sense to act intelligently, with all that liberty. Do they have it? We'll watch and see.

It certainly does cheer a fellow up to read a local fashion arbiter's optimistic note, "Dresses will be worn a little longer in Washington." I was afraid, from the number of broad-beamed funny-lookings that go around in knicks when they shouldn't, that dresses were no longer to be worn here. Unless one has keen eyesight and a knowledge of lines and proportions, one can hardly tell him from her. One way to tell, at an outing, is to offer the doubtful one the flask. If he drinks, it's a boy, and if she drinks, it's a girl.

REVENGE!

Delilah "bobbed" poor Samson's locks,
In distant days of yore,
And he quit lifting granite blocks
And hefting tons galore.
With fingers deft, his curls she cleft,
While he was deeply sleeping,
And not a single lock was left
When she had finished reaping!
And Samson was bereft of pow'r,
And wept because of weakness;
Delilah heard his comments sour
Without display of meekness;
Who once had been a mighty oak,
Was now a weeping willow.

Delilah took the hirsute cloak
And stuffed a sofa pillow!
But times have changed—now Samson stands
In strength and vigor there
With comb and scissors in his hands,
Behind his barber chair;
Delilah meekly takes a seat—
Ofttimes the outcome fearing;
The scissors snip, 'neath fingers fleet—
And Samson does the shearing!

RIPPLING RHYTHM Wave Waving

THE WEATHER

The gifted prophet who can cast the weather for a month or can predict the hour of the day that blows our hair and says, "Tomorrow will be windy, rain will start at dawn, and prudent men had better get their slickers out of pawn." Such reports from all the land, charts, in green and red, make his goosebone in his hand and sees one day ahead. He's not enough to knock on wood or springing his decree; his strange guesses are so good they're often said to be. It would be helpful if he could read his grandma's bones and make predictions for us all, or, peradventure, tell us what had said in '29, "Now we will be a frost: for weeks on end the sun will shine, regardless of cost. There will not be a drop of rain to help the withering crops, and hardly will we pray in vain for even single drops. The rivers will be full of dust, and crickets will not moan, the earth will be so dry its crust is like a cake of soap. There won't be enough rain to wash the mildew from a pea; do not try to plant your toil will wash away. And there was not a sprout in view a crystal ball to see what year would be a bumper crop of harvests beauty. Then we rose at six and hitched the old plow to the mule and planted long, long rows of corn that we would have to hoe. We planted all the seeds in rows, greens, the kind that grow in the kaffir corn, the kind that grow beans, that we could feed the goats. We plowed the ground and sowed along the rows, and the prophet came around and said we were nuts.

RIPPLING RHYTHM

THE WEATHER PROPHET
The gifted prophet can forecast the weather for a day; he can predict the booming blast that blows our hats away. He says, "Tomorrow will be wet, the rain will start at dawn, and prudent men had better get their slickers out of pawn." He reports from all the land, he charts, in green and red; he has his goosebone in his hand, he sees one day ahead. He's smart enough to knock on wood when springing his decree; his strange guesses are no good, they're often sad to see. It would be helpful if the guy could read his groundhog true and make predictions for a year, or, peradventure, more. If he had said in '29, "Next year will be a frost; for weeks on end the sun will shine, regardless of cost. There will not be a drop of rain to help the farmer's crops, and husbandmen will pray in vain for forty-nine drops. The rivers will be dry as dust, and stricken mean, the earth will bake until its crust is like a slab of stone. There won't be rain enough to wash the mildew from a pea, do not try to raise a squash, your toil will be wasted, be there was not a seer on deck to view a crystal ball, and say this year would be a wreck, my harvests beastly small. And we rose at early hours, and hitched the old gray mare, and planted long, long rows of corn that we would raise on shares. We planted all the alsikes, greens, the barley and the oats, the kaffir corn, the soybeans, that we might feed our goats. We dug and delved and plowed the ground, we hoed along the ruts, and all a prophet came around to tell us we were nuts.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

by Honore Booth

FASHION EXPERT OF HARPER'S BAZAAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (Exclusive) Now, after the August collection in Paris, the clothes situation has assumed more definite, more understandable lines and silhouettes than at any time during the past year. The burning question of cost lengths which worried us all just a year ago, is settled. Three horizontal lines have done it. There's the long coat, coming to the edge of your skirt, the three-quarter suit coat, or the short jacket of your ensemble. The eye has quickly become accustomed to the long daytime coat, and subtle ways have been found to give it a chic silhouette and take away from the heavy look we all feared. This has been done by slight flares, by more important cuff and sleeve emphasis and by crossed, though unbulky fronts. Black Persian lamb and a revival of seal were two of the most noticeable furs used for coat trimmings in the August collections.

Sometimes sleeves were quite large at the tops, sometimes the elbow treatment showed an outward curve. All these variations emphasize the slenderness of the coat proper and make it look slimmer in proportion.

About Evening Wraps

Evening coats were mostly of three-quarter and longer lengths. These, of lames and of velvet, even of the more humble velveteen, were either wrapped in front in the shorter length, or flared in the longer line to imposing importance. One may once more invest in an evening coat, not several evening coats and feel well dressed.

The Waistline Problem

What a pother we were all in a year ago today as to our waistlines. Now we have grown accustomed to seeing them raised, have learned to manage our understrapped curves to accommodate this line. Chanel, the astute, says we may put our belts exactly on our hip bones if we like, and her smartly dressed mannequins paraded round the room pushing their narrow belts to just this place.

Belts at this line, belts at the natural curve, belts two inches higher than normal are all sponsored this year. Surely a wide program.

Skirts are long for evening, but ankle length is permissible for dancing. For daytime they are still halfway down the calf in many instances, though Chanel showed them a little shorter and Lanvin a little longer than this. For afternoon almost ankle length was often seen, adding a touch of dignity, well placed, and suggesting a charming hostess, more formal than she was in the morning in her tweed walking suit, less formal than she will appear on the dancing floor later in the evening. All in all, within limitations, one may invest in a suitable wardrobe this season without misgiving, satisfied that real styles have developed from last year's revolutions.

CHEF WYMAN'S RECIPES

The Times' free cooking school conducted by Chef Wyman has been discontinued for the summer. Date for resuming has not been set but will be announced later.

FRUIT DOUGHNUTS

Cream one-third cupful of shortening, and cream into it a little at a time, one cupful of sugar. Separate two eggs, beat the yolks until light and four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of cinnamon, and add to the mixture, alternately with one and one-fourth cupfuls of milk. Lastly stir in the stiffly beaten whites of the two eggs, place on a floured board, and divide the mixture in half. Roll out half as thin as for ordinary doughnuts, and instead of cutting with a doughnut cutter, use a large biscuit cutter. Make a depression in half of the round, and place in the center a mixture of equal parts of chopped candied cherries, and crushed pineapple. Have the fruits well drained. Place a second round over the fruit, wet the edges with a little cold water or milk and press together tightly. Fry in deep hot shortening until well browned.

FISH AND CORN EN CASSEROLE

Season four cupfuls of cooked flaked fish, with salt, paprika, a few grains of Cheyenne pepper, and a teaspoonful of Worchestershire sauce. In the bottom of a well-oiled casserole place a layer of bread crumbs, over this spread a layer of cooked, seasoned corn, then a layer of the fish, continue the layers until all have been used, having the last layer of corn heavily sprinkled with bread crumbs. Make a white sauce of two tablespoonfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, and a cupful of rich milk. Add a seasoning of salt and white pepper and as soon as it is thick and smooth, remove from the fire and add two finely chopped pimientos and one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley. Pour it over the fish, sprinkle over the top a little grated cheese ,and place in a medium oven for about thirty minutes.

RICE PUFFS

One cupful of cold boiled rice, two eggs, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Put the rice through a potato ricer, add the eggs that have been well beaten with the salt, drop by spoonfuls on to a griddle that has been heated and well oiled, and fry a light brown on both sides, serve with maple syrup.

CHOCOLATE PARAFAY

Place in the top of a double boiler two cupfuls of rich milk, or thin cream and bring to the boiling point, add one cupful of grated unsweetened chocolate, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, and cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thick. Remove from the fire, and while still hot, beat in the yolks of three well-beaten eggs. Pour the mixture into serving glasses, and set aside to cool. Take one cupful of pecans or walnuts, chopped fine, and sprinkle over the parafay. Serve with whipped cream.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 2 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, cuticle for the new baby, sleeping, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, sprues, stye on eyelids and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

CURLY OR STRAIGHT HAIR USUALLY RETAINS ITS TYPE

All of us long for the impossible. If we could choose our facial characteristics we would all have short, tip-tilted noses, enormous eyes and dimples. My own round-faced daughter pines for a long face with high cheekbones. When mothers have ceased to sigh for the moon for themselves, they want miracles for their children.

Imagine letting this be a worry when there are so many real ones in the world! A worried mother writes me: "I see where you help others and I would be obliged if you helped me. My baby daughter is 2 years of age and built proportionately. Her hair will not grow. I have tried not washing it for several days and this hasn't helped. She has never had her hair cut but I have trimmed it. I would just love to see her hair in curls. Her hair grows darker every day. Would you think it safe to use something on it?"

HAIR SHAFT HAS DEFINITE TYPE

When mothers ask me, "If I brush the baby's hair the wrong way when it is wet, will it curl in time?" and then again, "My baby's hair is curly. If I have it cut will the curl leave it?" I can only say that if curly hair could be encouraged by any such methods, there wouldn't be a straight-haired adult, and if curly hair would be lost because of cutting there wouldn't be a curly-haired man.

Of course, we know that nothing like this happens. If a child has straight hair it remains straight; if it is curly, ditto. The shape of the hair shaft itself is what makes curly or straight hair, for we know that even a thin flat sliver of wood will curl, while a round tube of any kind resists every effort to make it stay curled. When an adult has a permanent wave the change comes about because the hair shaft is temporarily pressed flat by heat. As soon as the new round (oblong) dered hair grows in it is just as straight as it ever was. In this case "permanent" means for one season.

KEEPING HAIR ATTRACTIVE

My suggestion is to make the best of whatever type of hair baby has inherited. Whether straight or curly, blond, red or black, it is attractive if clean, healthy and well kept. Cut your child's hair so that it frames the face attractively, keep it well brushed, wash it twice weekly with good soap suds, rinse well and in the last rinse water squeeze the juice of a lemon. This will give it the bright glints you desire, if you dry it in the sun.

The thickness and health of the hair is definitely affected by the child's diet. Any part of the body is only superficially improved by being treated directly; but the whole body is affected, and therefore each part of it, by good food, plenty of sunshine and fresh air, sleep and exercise. This is usually disappointing to mothers who would much rather rub on a tonic conscientiously. Write this department for the leaflet on "Care of Hair and Teeth" (inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, please,) and also on "Week's Menu for the Child from Two to Four."

Health and Diet Advice

THE INVOLUNTARY MUSCLES

Why has no one ever been able to hold his breath until he died? Why do you blush when you do not want to? Can you stop blushing? Why turn pale? Can you make goose flesh by putting your mind to it? Why do the pupils of your eye contract? Can you stop the beat of your heart?

The reason that you cannot easily order these actions around is that they are performed by involuntary muscles or muscles which are not under the control of the will.

When you study these involuntary muscles you will find that they form the layers which make up the vital organs, such as the heart and digestive organs. These muscles also line the blood vessels and control the flow of blood. They are laid in flat sheets rather than in bundles, and have smaller cells than the voluntary muscles, but they both work in the same way: by shortening and thickening, they cause movement.

It is the important work of the involuntary muscles to force the food and feces along the thirty feet of alimentary canal. In the digestive tract such muscles squeeze the food materials, thoroughly churn them with the digestive juices, and in the end push the waste products out of the body. (They cause the blood to flow, pushing it along the vessels.) Your heart is made entirely of this kind of fiber and for this reason you cannot easily control its beat by an effort of the will.

The action of the involuntary muscles of the stomach is important to your life. A stomach has a coat of three layers of involuntary muscles. One layer runs around it, another layer runs up and down and the third runs slantwise or obliquely. When food is being digested, the three muscle layers contract in such a way as to churn it with the digestive juices. After a meal the stomach starts churning and keeps up the motion until all the food leaves it, sometimes working for as long as seven hours. When food is ready to leave, it is shoved out of the stomach by the same muscular action.

This churning and contracting is called peristalsis, which means that the muscles contract to form ridges or waves which travel over the surface of the stomach and intestines, one wave following another. This action seems to be inherent, but there are certain nervous impulses arising from the central nervous system which regulate the speed of the waves. While an effort of the will does not have much effect on the involuntary muscles, it is certain that various emotions and desires do influence these muscles. The heart will beat faster with sudden fright. The stomach may cease to work entirely for even hours when one is in great pain or in sorrow. Likewise, intestinal peristalsis becomes very sluggish with one who is made very sad by the death of a dear friend.

HAPPY DAYS

Some fall in love and do not know it
While to the world they plainly show it.
—Old Mother Nature.

Impy was beside himself with happiness. It seemed to him that the whole Great World had changed. Whereas only such a short time before it had been a gloomy old world, it now was the brightest old world imaginable. And it was all because a certain little Chipmunk, little Miss Frisky, had allowed him to touch noses. Such a thrill as ran all over Impy when he felt the touch of little Miss Frisky's nose. Then little Miss Frisky jumped back and ran. Impy ran after her.

"Don't run away!" he begged.

"Don't run away!"

Little Miss Frisky seemed not to hear. She dodged behind a big stone. Impy hurried after her and almost ran into her. There she sat behind that big stone. Once more they touched noses. Once more little Miss Frisky ran and Impy ran after her. It was like a game. Presently, Impy noticed that each time little Miss Impy ran a shorter distance. At last there came a time when after touching noses she didn't run.

"Did that big fellow with whom you fought hurt you much?" she asked.

"No," boasted Impy. "Of course, he hurt me some, but I'm all right now."

"It was awful," said little Miss Frisky; and the way she said it made Impy tingle all over. "I was afraid he would kill you, because he was so big and strong."

"He—he did make me run," confessed Impy.

"Of course he did!" said little Miss Frisky brightly. "I never was so glad in my life as when finally you ran away."

Such a funny look as crossed the face of Impy. "But running away meant that I was beaten," he protested. "Do you mean that you were glad to see me beaten?"

"Of course not! How silly!" exclaimed little Miss Frisky. "I was glad to see you run, because I knew if you didn't you would be killed.

"I was fighting for you," said Impy

And I didn't want you to be killed."

"Why not?" asked Impy.

Little Miss Frisky pretended not to hear that question. "I ran away and hid from that big fellow," said she. "He hunted and hunted for me but he couldn't find me. I made sure that he had gone away before I showed myself at all." Little Miss Frisky reached over and gently licked one of Impy's wounds. Impy almost wished that he had a dozen wounds. "You are so brave," whispered little Miss Frisky.

Impy did his best to look the part. "Do you know what I was fighting for?" he asked.

"Tell me," said little Miss Frisky.

"I was fighting for you," said Impy.

"Not really?" replied little Miss Frisky.

"Y- really," retorted Impy. "You see, I was afraid you would go off with him and I wanted to drive him away. I didn't want you to go away. You won't, will you?"

"No," said little Miss Frisky. "I won't go if you don't want me to. Are you happy?"

"I never was so happy in all my life," replied Impy.

"Neither was I," said little Miss Frisky.

And this was the beginning of many happy days.

Pair Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Max N. Newmark of 630 South Ardmore avenue, pioneer residents of Los Angeles, today will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. Following a family dinner they will be at home to their friends. Mr. Newmark came here in 1869 and until his retirement a few years ago, was in the wholesale grain and feed business. The couple have two daughters and one son.

BANK OFFICER SERVES QUARTER OF CENTURY

Elwood G. Pomeroy, assistant cashier, Security-First National Bank, today completes a quarter-century of service with that institution. He started with the old Central Bank, now merged in the Security-First National banking system. He once was president of the Los Angeles Chapter, American Institute of Banking.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Good Two Ways

One housewife gives the family boiled rice for the washday breakfast, cereal and uses the rice water for light starching of the clothes. Not bad, is it?

An Identification

Always be sure that in your pocketbook there is a card bearing your name, telephone number and address. Then should you be unfortunate enough to lose your pocketbook, you stand a chance of its being returned. Many honest people will keep something found when they have no way to return it, but would return it immediately if there were some means of identification.

Spills

Kerosene will remove rust from scissors.

A bed will never stay neat if the sheets are too short.

Don't sweep the kitchen when there is uncovered food on the table.

There is no place so much like home for leftover vegetables as in a savory soup.

Don't neglect the leather furniture until it is too late. A rubbing with linseed oil occasionally will prevent it from cracking and drying.

FILIPINOS LAY PLANS

Announcement is made of the scheduling of the dates of October 29 to November 6, next, for the pre-convention of the Filipino Federation of America, which will bring approximately 500 officers of the organization to Los Angeles to draft plans for the national convention to be held late in December.

Three Bottles Helped Her

"I cannot praise your good medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any other mother has those tired feelings like I had, I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Harold Goodnow, 36 Cane Street, Fitchburg, Massachusetts.

FARE REDUCED FOR YALE TRIP

Indian Summer Excursion to Bay City Announced

Liner will Leave Wilmington on Friday Afternoon

New Passenger Motorship Now Ready for Trials

BY WAYNE B. CAVE

A sea trip on a fast ship so cheap that it doesn't pay even to stay at home is offered by the Lasco coastwise liner Yale, sailing from Wilmington at 4 p.m. next Friday for San Francisco.

For this special Indian summer round trip to the Bay City and back, the company has set a minimum low round-trip fare of $10 with a six-day return limit.

As the round voyage covers approximately 900 miles, the travel cost is in the neighborhood of a cent a mile. However, included in the $10 fare are four meals aboard ship and two nights' lodging en route, which cuts the transportation cost materially under 1 cent a mile.

Practically a third of the liner's accommodations are at the minimum rate, with better rooms slightly higher.

CRAFT FOR ENSENADA SERVICE TO GET TESTS

A small new, triple-screw passenger carrier, the motorship Valencia, will get her trial trip Wednesday or Thursday, preparatory to inaugurating a passenger run between Los Angeles and Ensenada.

Started at Newport and completed at the yards of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding Corporation for the Burge Navigation Company, the craft represents an expenditure of almost $200,000, and presents several novel features.

In length 136 feet, she has an unusual beam of thirty-five and an extremely shallow draft of only six feet. She is powered by one 200-horsepower Atlas Imperial Diesel and two 150-horsepower Bessemer Diesels, said to give a speed of fifteen knots.

Plans are to run three round voyages by daylight to Ensenada each week. Her daylight passenger capacity is 175, which includes cabins for sleeping eighty-five. Several dozen shipping men have been invited to be guests on the trial cruise to the Isthmus of Catalina Island and back.

John Barrymore and his wife, Dolores Costello, and their young daughter sailed from Long Beach at 2 p.m. yesterday in their 130-foot cruiser-yacht Infanta for a week's cruise to Ensenada. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Patton are among the guests. The Infanta is commanded by Capt. Otto Matthies.

Earnford Sconhoft, young San Pedro artist, sailed yesterday on the Norwegian tank motorship Svolder for two years' study in France, Germany, Italy and Spain. He is the son of Gunnar Sconhoft, San Pedro ship chandler, and Mrs. Sconhoft, and is a former student of Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles.

The new Norwegian tank motorship Velma, just completed abroad, arrived here yesterday to undergo a long-time charter to the Chile Steamship Corporation, according to W. H. Wickersham & Son, agents. She will load 86,000 barrels of fuel oil and depart for Chile at noon today. The same concern has in at Elwood today the San Diego Maru to lift 36,000 barrels of crude oil for Mitsubishi Company, and tomorrow the Lompoc to load 70,000 barrels of diesel oil for Panama. Yesterday saw the Nippon Maru sail with fuel oil for the Japanese navy base at Tokuyama.

Disembarking forty of her 100 passengers on arrival yesterday from New York, the Dollar globe-girdling liner President Fillmore will embark forty and sail west today after discharging 1200 tons and lifting as much more cargo. Outbound passengers include Dr. Rudolph Frerichs of Germany, of recent years with the California Institute of Technology, en route to Kobe.

N.Y.K.'s new motor liner Tatsuta Maru is due on her third trip from the Orient today with 150 passengers, and will sail back Wednesday with 200.

The Damsterdyk, a twin-screw motorship just completed abroad for the Pacific-European run for Holland-America Line, sailed from Rotterdam yesterday en route to this coast on her maiden voyage. She is a sister ship of the new Delftdyk, a passenger and freight carrier, recently making her debut on this coast.

A new directory of manufacturing and foreign-trade concerns in Southern California is just off the presses for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Compiled after seven months' assembling, the new directory names 7434 organizations, an increase of 1600 since the last publication two years ago. Foreign traders occupy 208 pages, manufacturies, 356, with cross-indexes disclosing the kind of product from abalone cakes to zinc oxide. Features include a section in Spanish for use in countries speaking that language, and another section in Japanese. Eighteen thousand copies are being printed, a liberal number being forwarded to commercial and trade attaches, consulates and such abroad.

Grace Line men here over the week-end from San Francisco included G. J. Florintine, purchasing agent; George Williams, operating manager, and George R. McCord, the latter of Arrow Oil Company, a Grace subsidiary.

CANADIANS HONOR DEAD COMRADES

Anniversary of British Tank's First Raid Marked by Rites at Cemetery

The first British tank lumbered its way across the Von Hindenburg line thirteen years ago yesterday, to mark the turning point in the World War.

In celebration of the event, more than 200 veterans of the Canadian Legion formed a parade and marched to Inglewood Cemetery, where they paid silent tribute to dead brother troopers by placing a wreath of Flanders poppies on the Canadian War Memorial. The parade was led by Col. Andrew M. Pratt, the oldest British war veteran in California.

The ceremonies were directed by Col. Alfonso G. Fonseca, president of the Canadian Society of Southern California, with Post No. 13 of Inglewood and Post 10 of Los Angeles taking an active part. Present also were seven prize-winning Canadian beauties—four of them sisters—who are making a tour of the United States. They were selected in contests sponsored by the Legion throughout the Dominion. Their names and the cities from which they were chosen, are: Muriel Elvin, Victoria, B. C.; Gladys and Lillian Elvin, Saskatoon; Myrtle Elvin, Quebec; Ann Thompson, Ontario; Ruby Andrews, Ontario, and Gloria Wymore, Nova Scotia.

LOUIS MANN CHARMS IN NEW FILM

Notable of Stage Enacts First Talkie Role With Fine Show of Talent

BY JOHN SCOTT

Serving to introduce Louis Mann, veteran stage actor and contemporary of Warfield and Belasco, to the talking screen, "Sins of the Children" came to the Tower Theater over the week-end and brought its message of intimate family life and sentiment to responsive and sympathetic audiences.

The venerable star of many footlight presentations in the past endowed his characterization as a kindly and sacrificing father with a charm not to be resisted, even by the spectator who covers a misty eye with an exclamation of disapproval because of the undeniable appeal to his sentiment.

In the earlier scenes of "Sins of the Children," when Mann is a struggling barber with ambitions to start a building-and-loan business, there is a marked tendency toward comedy, and the actor's broad German accent is at times hard to understand. However, when he finally confronts the man who is responsible for what he thinks is failure, later in life, Mann rises to such heights as to place his audience in the hollow of his hand. The years fall away as if they had been a figurative cloak tossed aside when he stands defiant and says, "I am the rich man—and you are the pauper."

"Sins of the Children" was written about the star by that prolific father-and-son team, J. C. and Elliott Nugent. It has been tailored to his order, and an all-star supporting cast surrounds him—players who have scored in leading roles in other pictures, but who fill minor parts in this film, passing up any glory they might win in deference to the veteran.

Such actors as Robert Montgomery, Elliott Nugent, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Robert McWade, Henry Armetta and Leila Hyams act in "Sins of the Children" as sons, daughters, friends and enemies of Mann. It is sufficient to say they present finished performances.

There is a comparatively unfamiliar face in the picture, that of Mary Doran, who, as the manicurist, reveals a new and fresh personality and marked talent. She has a sympathetic role, one which suits her to better advantage than the vampish parts which she has taken in the past, and one which promises better things for her in the future. Clara Blandick and Jeane Wood are also seen in minor roles.

Sam Wood directed the production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, presenting his story in logical and workmanlike fashion.

Pathe sound news, a cartoon and other short subjects complete the program at the Tower Theater.

Veteran Stars in Playlet at Theater Mart

A belated visit to the Theater Mart on Saturday evening revealed one Henri de Vries, actor of Holland, in one of the most remarkable playlets that have appeared on the local boards in years. It is called "A Case of Arson;" and its presentation concluded a program which also devoted itself to "Collaboration," by Sada Cowan, and "Scherzo," by George Carter.

Mr. De Vries, discounting an almost uncanny ability to change his physical appearance seven times in as many minutes, makes no false move, no forced gesture, to reveal the fact that he is only play-acting. Years of study, unquestionably, have developed in him a sharp, complete assumption of each of the seven roles with what must amount by now to instinct. In succession he crossed the little stage as one or another of the quaint figures involved in the mysterious case of arson which led to the destruction of a cigar factory and, unhappily, the cigar manufacturer's small daughter at the same time.

First he crept timidly in an Ansing Arend, atrophic-brained brother of the unfortunate manufacturer; then as big, shifty-eyed John Arend himself; and afterward as Thomas Blankert, querulous old father-in-law of John; Biesen, wheezy police sergeant; Putten, innkeeper; Post, a grocer in his dotage, and finally, Bik, a house painter.

Characterization rang truest in the impersonations of the two Arends, but was hardly less effective as those others. Mr. De Vries falls short only in the clarity of his speech which, accent-blurred, at times loses distinctness to the listener. Yet he is so expressive in pantomime that no doubt as to the import of his words is ever created.

Peter Gawthorne and Charles Schaeffer lent support to a man who needed little or none. Indeed, the suspicion was fleetingly born that both gentlemen were not named Gawthorne and Schaeffer at all. Had they not moved across the same stage in his presence, one might have believed them to be none other than Henri De Vries himself.

Youth Hikes Long Way to Achieve Goal

He got a ride—across 350 miles of desert—but the rest of the way he walked from New Orleans to Hollywood. He wanted to meet a certain movie star and work with him in a picture and that is why he did it.

Only a very youthful person would do such a thing and Harold Hargrove, although he has been here in Hollywood fourteen months now, is just 18. But the strange thing about it is—he hasn't done the picture yet—but he has met the movie star and the two are friends.

Harold wants to act. He has been fired from usher jobs because he looked too much at the screen; he has been laughed at and pleaded with. But nothing would shake him. He would be an actor.

And, strange again, he is. He is the freshman in "The Poor Nut" at El Capitan. He had done an extra bit in his home production of the play and Elliott Nugent heard of it and gave him "a break."

Harold is more than ever determined to be an actor now. Back home in Alabama he tried three times to quit the shoe store where he was working, (he used to take two hours for lunch in order to see a movie;) but his boss was kind and wouldn't let him because he had no money. He gave Harold talks and Harold couldn't resist them. The third time, however, young Mr. Hargrove said, "I'm going this time, so please don't talk to me." And he did.

There was enough money to buy a ticket to New Orleans. He landed with $3.57. When he reached Hollywood he had $1.52. He ushered again in a theater, he worked on the stock market, he did more ushering so that he could eat these past fourteen months.

And now he has most of what he came here for: he is an actor (for the time at least,) and he has his pal, the movie star. And unless Harold has broken down and confessed this past week, that star doesn't yet know that he was a guiding light. Harold will walk, but he won't talk.

DOWNTOWN ANNOUNCES NEW FILM

Lewis Stone and Dorothy Mackaill Play Lead Roles in "Office Wife"

"The Office Wife," Warner Brothers production based on the novel by Faith Baldwin, is announced as the next attraction at Warner Brothers' Downtown Theater, starting Friday.

Dorothy Mackaill and Lewis Stone are costarred in this story of the modern business world which, it is said, throws a new light on the associations of prominent business men and their secretaries. Miss Mackaill has the role of the secretary. Lewis Stone portrays the part of the wealthy executive.

Hobart Bosworth, Blanche Frederici, Joan Blondell, Natalie Moorhead, Brooks Benedict, Dale Fuller, Walter Merrill and John Rogers complete the cast. Charles Kenyon is responsible for the screen play and dialogue of the Baldwin novel. Lloyd Bacon directed.

Popular Player Enacts Lead in "Man Trouble"

Dorothy Mackaill is said to retain all her charm and personality in her latest screen vehicle, "Man Trouble," scheduled to start at the Boulevard Theater Thursday. She is costarred in this picture with Milton Sills.

DOROTHY MACKAILL

Sills reverts from his former type of roles to that of a successful villain in the story of a girl who was double-crossed by all men until she met the right one.

In the supporting cast are Kenneth MacKenna, Roscoe Karns, Sharon Lynn, Oscar Apfel and Edith Chapman. The screen play is adapted from the story by Ben Ames Williams. Berthold Viertel directed.

'Hell's Angels' Run Will Close in Two Weeks

Saturday, the 27th inst., is announced as the date of the final performance of "Hell's Angels," Howard Hughes's aerial film, at Grauman's Chinese Theater.

The concluding performance will bring to an end the successful engagement of the $4,000,000 production, which has shattered attendance marks, it is said.

Announcement of the last two weeks of a production always sends late patrons scampering to the Chinese and the management is making preparations to accommodate crowds of belated visitors during the few remaining performances.

Ann Harding to Act as Hostess

Ann Harding will personally appear at the Carthay Circle Theater tonight to act as hostess to members of the Texas State Society, who will honor her as a native and former resident of Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Miss Harding is the daughter of an army general, and spent all of her youth in the various army camps to which he was assigned.

COMEDY OF WAR SLATED AT LOEW'S

Buster Keaton Stars in "Dough Boys" as Rookie; Humor Promised

Loew's State Theater announces that laugh week starts Thursday, with Buster Keaton in "Dough Boys" as the inspiration.

The comedian, who was returned to popularity in "Free and Easy," his first talkie, is said to establish himself as a prince of humor in this new effort, which was directed by Edward Sedgwick.

Keaton portrays a dumb rookie in the World War.

Al Boasberg and Sidney Lazarus are responsible for the original story and Boasberg and Richard Schayer the dialogue. Cliff Edwards, Sally Eilers, Edward Brophy, Victor Potel, Arnold Korff, Frank Mayo, Pitzy Katz and William Steele comprise the supporting cast.

Norma Shearer in "Let Us Be Gay" is the current attraction.

Original Film Cast will See Sound Version

Several of the players who composed the original cast of D. W. Griffith's film epic, "The Birth of a Nation," have signified their intention of being present when the picture is given its premiere in sound at the President Theater Wednesday night.

Donald Crisp, Pathe director; Mae Marsh, now retired from the screen; Joseph Henaberry, director and producer; Walter Long, still active in character roles; Mary Alden and Ralph Lewis, who are still seen occasionally in the talkies, base their subsequent success on their portrayals in this epic film which was first produced sixteen years ago, and will lend their presence to the gala opening.

The absence of Henry G. Walthall on location, D. W. Griffith and Lillian Gish in New York make their personal appearances impossible, but each has wired best wishes to the theater.

BIBLE AND HEART OF MAN AGREE ON FUTURE LIFE

Dr. Bruce Brown Discusses Essence of Christianity in Sermon at South Park Church

"The heart of the Bible and the heart of man agree that there is a life beyond the grave," declared Dr. Bruce Brown in his sermon yesterday at South Park Christian Church.

Admitting that it is difficult to formulate a list of "absolute essentials of Christianity," Dr. Brown said there are many vital and eternal truths that contain the essence of the Christian religion.

"In the first place, there is a super-human intelligence in the world," said Dr. Brown. "It matters little by what name this intelligence is designated. The Bible, particularly the New Testament, is the best revelation of that intelligence. Let any man take out all that he doubts, there still remain the plans and specifications for the character that we are compelled to admit is exemplification of wisdom and goodness. Jesus is the best exhibition that history produces of a practical incarnation of the ideals and principles of the Bible. The heart of all the teachings of Jesus is the possibility of a new life, that the old may be buried and that from its tomb comes forth a new mind, devoid of selfishness. This new life is characterized by righteousness, by selfless service, by love for God and mankind. The punishment for wrongdoing is most terrible in this life and, unless another system of imperatives prevail, will continue to be terrible in the next life."

SALVATIONISTS HEAR CAPT. FRANK MANN

"Anchored in Christ" is the topic of a sermon preached yesterday by Capt. Frank Mann at Salvation Army Citadel. Excerpts from the discourse follow:

"Why are there so many derelicts on the world's ocean? It is because of lack of spiritual anchor for the soul. The soul is of spiritual origin and it must be spiritually anchored. You cannot find anchorage for it in any earthly possession. Man without Christ is like a ship without an anchor. He is tossed about by every wind and wave. The only place to drop anchor is in the Christ of God. The only safe light to follow is the light of the world."

RABBI SAYS HEALING POSSIBLE BY PRAYER

"The rabbi who confessed to an inability to heal is virtually confessing that he is unfit for his calling, yet the rabbi who calls himself a healer should be marked as a charalatan," declared Dr. Julius A. Leibert in his Sabbath sermon at Temple Emanu-El.

"There is but one healer, God, and the true rabbi is one whose life is so demonstrably good that he is justified in making his own experience a lesson to his congregation," said Dr. Leibert. "As such, he is deemed nearer to God than the ordinary man and, by virtue of that moral excellence, his petitions to heaven must in all reasonableness merit a more favorable as well as prompter answer. The Mayo brothers have been quoted as saying that prayer helps the patient. As a man of religion I interpret this statement as implying the objective effects of prayer, and, as answer to prayer is conditioned on a mortal life, it must follow that the purer the life the more potent is its appeal to God. Healing through prayer is possible, but the true rabbi is content to be known only as the instrument in God's hands of healing those who are sick.

MINISTER DECLARES GOD MUST BE UNKNOWN

"Every God is a false God," said Dr. Sheldon Shepard in his sermon yesterday at First Universalist Church.

"The only true God is the author of the universe," said Dr. Shepard. No one can describe Him. No one can know what the true God is. He must always be the unknown God, in whom we live and move and have our being. Every theology is wrong, for no man knows the workings of the Divine plan. And yet, every God is a true God. There is only one source of inspiration, and it floods upon the hearts of all men, the "light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world." Every person's description of God is false but his experience of God is true. Any attempt to force one's conception of God and salvation upon another is wrong. The only true evangelism is encouragement to experience more genuinely the God one sees."

CHEST WORK BEGUN EARLY

CECIL B. DE MILLE

That the motion-picture industry would approach the Community Chest campaign of this year in the highest state of advance preparation it has ever attained, is asserted by Cecil De Mille in accepting for the third successive season the chairmanship of the Chest's motion-picture division. He is president of the Association of Motion-Picture Producers.

"In surveying the past we saw clearly that it was comparatively easy to get a Chest contribution once the problems of the Chest could be forcefully and properly presented to a prospect," stated the president from his offices at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

"We within the industry know the traditionally generous attitude of our people toward matters of charity. We felt that in the past we had not started our campaign of education early enough so that each and all of the film workers would know the great work being done by the Children's Hospital, the Orthopaedic Hospital, Red Cross, the Salvation Army and all the 124 agencies of the Chest.

"Therefore, we have organized the industry this year to a more efficient degree than ever before. Colonels head the work in each studio, and under them department heads serve as captains. Various of the colonels and captains are being taken in person to certain of the Chest agencies so that they may be able to pass on first-hand information about lives that are being saved, or made happier, by the charitable dollars of this community.

"We are making it very plain that no matter what private charities within his own group a man or a woman may have, every person in the greater Los Angeles area has an inescapable responsibility to support the Los Angeles Community Chest.

"In addition to the natural impulses of charity in every man's heart there are sound economic reasons why everyone should support the Chest. Every city, and every industry within a city, suffers when the community becomes overburdened with physically dependent persons. Thousands of dollars in film revenues, for example, would have to be taken away from our industry if the hundreds of injured and ill people restored to efficiency each year, had not been taken in hand by agencies of the Chest.

"We are already starting our activities in the studios, even though the formal campaign is still some time off. A long campaign of education has borne fruit. Our people are conscious of the Chest's needs as they have never been before. I am very confident that we will have final figures of which we may well be proud to post alongside our quota of $175,000."

OPTIMISM URGED IN TIMES OF STRESS

Speaking on "A Word of Optimism in a Day of Depression," Rabbi E. F. Magnin, in his Sabbath sermon at Temple B'nai B'rith, said that the world is "not yet prepared for utter destruction" and that mankind "is not beyond redemption."

"It is right that we should face facts boldly, even when they are unpleasant, but we must shy clear of the conviction that all is lost," said Dr. Magnin. "We must engender more than ever a spirit of optimism, of hope and of faith. We must feel our ability to overcome our defects and to rise above them to greater and nobler things. This spirit alone will pull us out of the morass of despair and set us from our feet. This alone will restore us to a position of dignity and self respect and make for future progress."

TRUE CHURCH HELD FOR ALL BELIEVERS

Declaring that no human bans or proscriptions can exclude from the true church any one who, by faith, is united to Christ, Dr. J. George Dorn, in his sermon at Hollywood Lutheran Church yesterday defined the Christian Church as "that great, all-inclusive body of God's children of all times and places."

"It matters not to what religious organization one may belong, he is a member of the true church if he is a believer in Christ," said Dr. Dorn. "On the other hand, no rites or proclamations of men can make one a real member of the church who is not so united to Christ. The church of today, in spite of its divided state and antagonism, is essentially one. Behind the strongly marked denominational barriers there is an invisible bond of unity. We believe that the church, being divinely instituted, is qualified and equipped to make conquest of the earth. Her failure in accomplishing this is to be found in the effort of men to substitute and improve the equipment God gave her, the Word and the Sacraments. The preaching of the Word and the proper administration of the Sacraments are the only weapons which God has appointed for our use."

GOOD WORD SPOKEN FOR MODERN YOUTH

In observation of Youth Day, Rev. Alden Lee Hill of Highland Park Christian Church, preached yesterday on "The Growing Importance of Youth in Relation to the Kingdom of God." Mr. Hill said in part:

"Never before in history has youth been given such opportunities and responsibilities. Contrary to the fact that many persons declare the youth of today are going to the bad, I believe that heroism, loyalty and adventure still are manifested in most youthful lives. There still are vast numbers of young men and women who are crusading with Christ. The church can well give serious attention to the training of these young persons who will bear the brunt of the burden tomorrow. All hail to the youth of America."

"SUBSTANCE" SUBJECT OF LESSON-SERMON

"Substance" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

One of the Scripture citations, referring to Christ Jesus, said: "Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen. And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. . . . And these signs shall follow them that believe! In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, presented these statements: "When the substance of Spirit appears in Christian Science, the nothingness of matter is recognized. Where the spirit of God is, and there is no place where God is not, evil becames nothing—the opposite of the something is Spirit."

Mrs. McCormick Rites Set Today

A resident of Los Angeles for more than a half-century, during forty-three years of which she resided at Seventeenth and Hill streets, Mrs. Margaret McCormick, 94 years of age, will be buried today.

Death came last Friday, largely as the result of shock caused by a violent fall several days ago at her home. Her hip was broken and she suffered internal injuries from which she was unable to rally because of her advanced age.

With her three daughters, Ida M., M. Blanche, and J. D. H. McCormick, she had made her home since 1887 at 325 West Seventeenth street, where she died. She was a native of Pittsburgh, but came to California in 1876. Her husband was Jacob Bell McCormick, and they were the parents of nine children, three of whom are living.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 today at Chichester Chapel of Immanuel Presbyterian Church. Burial will be at Evergreen Cemetery.

CROSLAND TAKES BODY EAST

Alan Crosland left last night for East Orange, N. J., accompanying the remains of his father, Frederick James Crosland, who died while visiting his son at his Beverly Hills home. Funeral services will be conducted from the residence of James Kenneth Crosland, brother of Alan, in East Orange. The father lived in New York prior to his coming west six weeks ago.

RED TRIAL JURY IN SIGHT TODAY

Panel May be Completed by End of Session

Seven Radicals Being Tried for Affair at Plaza

Defense Has Ten Challenges Remaining for Use

Selection of a jury to try seven Communists for offenses committed in connection with the radical demonstration at the Plaza on February 26, last, is expected to be completed late today in Municipal Judge Wood's court.

The second jury panel was exhausted late Friday as Leo Gallagher, defense attorney, used his thirty-fifth challenge. A new panel has been called for this morning. The defense has ten peremptory challenges remaining.

Charges against three of the defendants, Frank Spector and Carl Sklar, Communist organizers, and T. Horiuchi, a Japanese radical, have been dismissed by Judge Wood since the trial started.

The court ordered the charges dismissed on its own motion on the ground that since the three are serving forty-two-year terms in State's prison following felony convictions to try them for misdemeanors would be a waste of time and money.

LIGHT AS TO CHINA TRADE GAINED HERE

Senate Committee Gets First-Hand Information in Los Angeles Sessions

Information and suggestions obtained at Los Angeles hearings of the subcommittee of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigating causes for decreased trade between the United States and China and seeking a remedy, will figure prominently in the committee's report and recommendations, according to Senator Pittman, chairman of the senatorial group.

The hearings are scheduled to be resumed today in quarters provided in the Chamber of Commerce Building by the foreign trade department of the chamber.

Senator Pittman pointed out that if a fact-finding body were sent to China it would involve considerable delay in meeting what he described as a crisis in Chinese affairs. Witnesses heard in Los Angeles, many of them just returned from the Orient, have been able to expedite the investigation by reporting conditions as they are.

Senators Shipstead and Swanson and Secretary Walsh of the committee also were gratified at the results of the Los Angeles hearings. They express profound interest in the report of Ernest Price, former consular agent in China, and in a suggested plan by Price providing for a loan to the Nationalist government of China and for supervision over its expenditure.

New Theater's Plan Like That of Guild in East

In planning to produce plays of the higher type, not usually accepted by professional producers, the Civic Repertory Theater is patterning itself after the Theater Guild of New York, says A. C. Balch, president of the Bowl Theater Association, sponsoring the repertory movement in Los Angeles.

"Both theaters hold to the purpose of offering to the public a repertoire of plays that it otherwise would not be able to see," Balch said. "If a play is deemed of sufficient merit we plan to produce it. The only difference between the two organizations lies in the disposition of any profits which may result. The Theater Guild returns these to its backers; the repertory group will use the money to build the Bowl Theater and to better its facilities."

Only professional actors and directors will be employed here, Balch said, as is the case with the eastern organization. Of the ten plays already selected for this season, only one has been produced previously on the Pacific Coast. The season will open October 27, next, in the Hollywood Music Box Theater with George Bernard Shaw's "The Apple Cart."

Signed by Dallas H. Gray, vice-chairman of the State-wide Grape Organization Committee, with offices in Oakland, the letter highly commends the work of Ross H. Gast, a member of the staff of the chamber, who directed the publicity program in connection with the sign-up campaign.

BREAKERS' CLUB SUITS CLASSIFIED

Eleven Actions Arranged in Order of Appearance to Terminate Confusion

Eleven cases growing out of the construction of the Breakers Club of Southern California clubhouse are consolidated, and today will continue on trial in Superior Judge Westover's court. They include mechanics' liens totaling $150,000, and questions as to bond issue on the leasehold, and two suits to quiet title. So complicated and interlocked were the various actions that the judge and a dozen attorneys devoted a day to arranging the order in which the suits are to be presented.

The first case to be tried, which resumes today, is that of the Hammond Lumber Company against Arthur Bard & Co., for goods sold and delivered, totaling $81,867.

The other cases consolidated are: Gore Brothers, Inc., and C. L. Langley, Inc., against Fred Jervis et al, to quiet title; Frank N. Fish against S. W. Briggs et al, to quiet title; Fred Jervis against Metropolitan Casualty Company of New York, a mechanic's lien; Felthouse Corporation against Metropolitan Casualty Company, a mechanic's lien; Hammond Lumber Company against Arthur Bard & Co., a bond suit; S. W. Briggs against Frank Fish, Title Guarantee and Trust Company, an action to set aside sale of real property; Llewellyn Iron Works against Metropolitan Casualty Company, a bond suit; Felthouse Corporation against National Surety Company, a bond suit; Fred Jervis and Don McCabe against National Surety Company, a bond suit.

SUPREME COURT WILL SIT TODAY

State Tribunal Scheduled for Two-Day Session Here

Admission of Bar Candidates First Order of Business

Two Murder Cases Also Have Place on Calendar

With the admission of 200 candidates to the practice of law as the first order of business, the Supreme Court will open a two-day session here today on the twelfth floor of the Associated Realty Building, Sixth and Olive streets.

Among the criminal cases to be heard is that of John Lee Howard, Pasadena garage man, convicted of the murder of his employer, Victor A. Cooley, and the case of Augustus A. Gingell, meat cutter, found guilty of having slain his wife, Mrs. Vera M. Gingell, 36, from whom he had been estranged, and his wife's asserted sweetheart, Sigurd Bjorneby.

Howard's case involves fine points of jury procedure. He was granted a new trial by the Supreme Court some time ago on the ground that his rights had been violated, but the State obtained a rehearing.

A calendared civil case which has aroused wide interest is the action of the Ventura County Harbor District against the Ventura Board of Supervisors, with the harbor district seeking a writ of mandate to compel the Supervisors to call a special election on a $2,000,000 harbor bond issue. The case has been continued at the request of counsel at the last two Supreme Court sessions.

GIRL HELD FOR SHARE IN MURDER

Young Wife of Bay City Arrested Here Confesses Part in Fatal Hold-up

Murder and robbery committed near San Francisco about two weeks ago had a sequel here yesterday when, acting on instructions from northern authorities, police arrested a young woman suspected of complicity in the double crime. She is Mrs. Josephine Greiner Mitchell, 18 years of age, and was taken in custody at the home of friends living at 738 West Forty-seventh street.

According to Detective Lieutenants Anderson and Atkins of the fugitive detail, who made the arrest, Mrs. Mitchell admitted being a party to the robbery plot that ended in a slaying, but denied active participation in it.

Mrs. Mitchell was driving with several men friends, two of whom she named as Johnny Cusack and Phil Mangereno, the detectives say she told them, when one suggested they hold-up John Marcelli, a recluse, known as a miser, who lived in a shack in Visitacion Valley. Next morning all drove to the shack, in which the intended victim was believed to have a hoard.

While Mrs. Mitchell remained in a back room, the officers quote her as stating, the men engaged the recluse in the front. When he resisted them one of them struck the 72-year-old man over the head. Then all fled and next day they learned he had been killed by the blow. Mrs. Mitchell later boarded a bus for Los Angeles, arriving here last Monday night.

Instructions wired local police by Chief Quinn of San Francisco, included information that Johnny Cusack, a boxer, and Phil Mangereno, a taxicab driver, are in custody there.

SIDE-SEAT DRIVING CHARGED

In a divorce complaint filed by Mrs. Isabelle A. Forbath against Elmer P. Forbath, the wife includes side-seat driving in her list of cruel acts and asserts that her husband seized the wheel of the family automobile while she was driving and caused the machine to plunge into a ditch, breaking her arm. They were married in 1923. Mrs. Forbath demands custody of the three children.

AUTO HITS BOY CYCLIST

Floyd Lee Church, 13 years of age, 3789 Redwood avenue, Venice, is in General Hospital with possible fatal injuries received yesterday when he was knocked down by an automobile while riding his bicycle at Venice and Lincoln boulevards. He has concussion of the brain and possible fracture of the spine.

After colliding with Church, eyewitnesses told police, the motorist continued on his way, returning on foot a few minutes later and mingling with the crowd that had gathered.

Some one pointed a man out to police and he was taken in custody, identifying himself as Ralph Mainell, 26, of 3773 Wasatch avenue, Venice. He was booked on suspicion of hit-and-run driving.

Woman Tries to End Life by Taking Poison

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Phoebe King of 749 Millwood avenue, Venice, was in the hospital here tonight slowly recovering from an attempted suicide, according to police reports.

The 36-year-old woman swallowed a large quantity of poison while alone in her home late this afternoon. Neighbors called the police when she was discovered and she was given first-aid treatment by Police Surgeon Saylin. A short time afterward she was brought to the hospital here. She will recover.

Police were attempting to discover a reason for the woman's act.

Flyer-Visitor Seeking Rest from Strife

War seems to dog Ernest L. Benway's footsteps.

In Europe when the World War struck, he wound up as a flyer with the Lafayette Escadrille. A chance visit to Central America synchronized with a Nicaraguan fiasco.

Recently he has been a pilot for Pan-American-Grace Airways in South America, and as such was an eyewitness to the recent risings in Bolivia, Peru and the Argentine.

Yesterday he arrived from Balboa on the Dollar liner President Fillmore and hopes he left revolutions behind him, particularly bombardments, such as one in Lima where his taxi was caught between the fire of 200 rebels and several score Federals.

In late August he also saw the Peruvian warship Admiral Grau, with President Leguia, capitulate without a struggle before a rebel submarine.

"I sure appreciate flying in California," he said. "Down where I've been in the Latin-Americas, radio beacons, lights and such are mighty few and the weather is treacherous."

Right now his hobby is advocating flying boats for pleasure yachts, and he expects to establish connection with some local aviation enterprise.

FUNERAL OF MRS. GIBSON TO BE TODAY

Mother of Ambassador to Belgium Noted for Work in Community Service

Funeral services for Mrs. Frank A. Gibson, mother of Hugh Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, will be conducted at 3 p.m. today in the First Congregational Church, Ninth and Hope streets. Mrs. Gibson died Thursday after an illness of more than a year at her home, 2305 Scarff street.

Among tributes paid Mrs. Gibson the Los Angeles League of Women Voters recounted Mrs. Gibson's work in community service.

The statement said in part: "She achieved lasting results during her ten years' service on the California Commission of Immigration and Housing. She inspired the home teacher law and her plans for citizenship education extended from local clubs to the General Federation.

"The cause of peace and international co-operation was most dear to Mrs. Gibson. She was chairman of the cause and cure of war committee, a member of the board of directors of the League of Nations Nonpartisan Association and member of the English-speaking Union and the Council of International Relations."

The funeral services will be followed by interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Woman Faces Sentence for Torturing Dog

Found guilty of cruelty to animals on a charge of rubbing turpentine on a dog, Mrs. A. L. Miller, 4843 Toland Way, is to appear before Municipal Judge Eagan today for sentence. Evidence produced at the woman's trial by Deputy City Prosecutor Ida V. Wells, showed that the dog died as a result of the cruelty.

Warren Hamilton, 11 years of age, and Robert Cullen, 8, testified they saw Mrs. Miller catch an Airedale belonging to Keith Bolster, 12, on June 26, last, and rub something on its back and sides. She laughed when the dog ran away howling, they said. Mrs. Adelaide F. Bolster, mother of the dog's owner, said it acted so peculiarly that she thought it mad and chained it in their garage until Keith released it. It died after suffering for more than a month, she said.

POISON LIQUOR TOLL GROWS

Two More Fatalities Laid to Bootleg Rum

Intensive Police Inquiry into Sales Forecast

Latest Cases Bring Total to Three in Week

An intensive police investigation into the sales of poison bootleg liquor was forecast yesterday with the third death classified on police reports within a week as resulting from alcoholic poisoning. The latest victims, reported yesterday, were George A. Keffler, 51 years of age, 149 West Fourteenth street, and Frank Galnes, 53, 6236 Orange street. The other victim was Jose Munoz, who died Friday.

Keffler died at the California Lutheran Hospital yesterday morning and Gaines at St. Vincent's Hospital. Both cases were reported by police to have been the result of alcoholic poisoning and the Coroner has ordered an autopsy.

The findings of a Coroner's autopsy held on Jose Munoz revealed the cause of death to have been acute alcoholism and, following the declaration, Felipe Aguirre was ar

Bromley Not Sure of Finances

Pacific Flyer May Have t Abandon Plans Due to Lack of Money

Hardships of Fight with Balky Motor and Bad Weather Described

HAMAMATSU (Aomori Prefec- ture, Japan) Sept. 16. (Tues- day) (Exclusive)—Harold Bromley, Ta- coma aviator whose fourth at- tempt to fly across the Pa- cific ended on the beach near here early yesterday when a damaged exhaust pipe and ad- verse weather conditions forced him to return to Japan, today was less sure about reattempt- ing the flight.

He said lack of finances might compel him to abandon his plans to span the Pacific from Japan to Tacoma, al- though he said he was unable to make a definite statement.

LIEUT. HAROLD BROMLEY

HAMAMATSU (Japan) Sept. 15. (Ex- clusive)—We had a tough time out over the Pacific, 1000 miles from shore. We fought fog and poisonous gas which was so thick that my navigator, Harold Gatty, fainted several times and when our engine stopped now and then we struggled on, determined to reach Tacoma on the first non-stop flight from Japan to the United States, until finally we had to admit that unless we turned back a crash was inevitable. And so we headed back for Japan, and here we are after a desperate battle.

STILL DETERMINED

Nobody could be as deeply disap- pointed as Gatty and I that we had to quit after covering so many hundreds of miles. We had been so cer- tain of success. We are both heart- sick. But we are not discour- aged. Gatty and I consider this only a game of hillside. We lost the shot and we called it post- poned. We cannot consider our- selves at all successful until we set our plane down in Tacoma. We are going to try it again . . . and soon. We know it can be done and we know we are going to do it! We got away beautifully with our heavy-loaded plane, City of Ta- coma, Sunday morning. (It was Sunday afternoon back home.) We checked our motor down to 1800 revolutions, unusually low for such a test. We were congratulating ourselves on that and on the weath- er, two hours from the start, when we had the first intimation of trouble, a slight chattering sound.

TERRIBLE ORDEAL

It came from the collector ring of the exhaust manifold. Soon a flame was visible and finally most
